Director says he will work to unite board

Wayne Joudrie

The new top educator at the Halton District School Board says one of his initial goals is to bring together trustees who have been at loggerheads over a number of issues in the last year.

Officially taking part in his first public board meeting as the education director, Wayne Joudrie delivered a speech to his new colleagues in which he explained four immediate goals he will address over the next while.

Among them is a bid to ease tensions among trustees.

Mr. Joudrie, a two-year education director for the Grand Erie school board, was selected unanimously by the 11 trustees in late August to take on the position vacated by Dusty Papke at the end of June.

Mr. Papke was education director for eight years and left with a controversial severance package of more than $600,000. His departure, announced at a stormy board meeting in May, left the board divided and a handful of trustees upset that a quality educator had left their board.

"My challenge will be to create more opportunities for this board to show unity and to take advantage of the fresh start," Mr. Joudrie said.

The other three goals Mr. Joudrie has include accommodation, in which he noted Halton has "experienced and continues to experience incredible growth"; hiring a superintendent of special education, a position that has sat empty since Brenda Kearney left the board at the end of June; and addressing the 2004-05 budget, which he said is "tracking toward a deficit."

He said he hadn't seen the final numbers but indicated any deficit will have to be made up in this year's budget.

The director said he planned to consult the board and public to get a sense of what they would like to see happen in education. This process will include one-on-one interviews with trustees and discussions with staff and school councils.

He said a survey for public feedback will be posted on the board's Web site and he will host public forums in the region's four municipalities.

Mr. Joudrie referenced the previous directors of education at the public board, saying, "I truly feel I am standing on the shoulders of giants."

Chair Paul Tate said he was impressed by Mr. Joudrie's speech, and the main goals he wants to deal with.

"I think he has a very strong sense of exactly what this board needs," he said, noting Mr. Joudrie is interested in transparency.

As for smoothing over trustee tensions, Mr. Tate said the issue for him is more about respecting each other's ideas.

"Unity, from my perspective, is a diffi-
