Cancer support group starting up

When it comes to suffering from cancer, it takes one to truly know one.

That's why Milton resident Elizabeth Kiddle, who was recently diagnosed with breast cancer, feels strongly that the time is right for her to start a cancer support group in town.

"I'm in the same boat," she said. The first meeting of the monthly group will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Martindale Gardens, 45 Martin St., and is for people suffering from cancer and caregivers.

"If you feel a need to reach out and meet others with similar experiences, this group is for you," Ms Kiddle said.

The support group will continue the second Wednesday of each month.

Ms Kiddle explained that a network of support is important, even for quiet people who tend to keep to themselves.

"Some people consider themselves private people and they don't easily share in groups," she said. "But I have a feeling people could surprise themselves by how comfortable they can feel in the group."

For more information, call Ms Kiddle at (905) 878-4952.
