

Golf course moving forward

A 27-hole golf course proposed for rural Milton came one step closer to reality this week.

At its meeting Monday, the Town's administration and planning committee endorsed a staff report that favours making Official Plan and zoning bylaw amendments to allow for the course at the south-east corner of Trafalgar and Britannia roads.

It also supported having staff bring forward the amendments for council adoption once the Town receives confirmation that a permit to take water for the course has been issued by the Ministry of Environment.

A staff report explains the permit is needed since "the applicant proposes to irrigate the golf course by taking water from the watercourse that traverses the property during spring runoff and during storm events and pumping into an off-line reservoir."

The report also says it's estimated .5 to two per cent of the existing flow in the watercourse will be drawn for the golf facility.

While the amendments will apply to a 200-acre piece of land, an additional 100 acres that's been zoned for a golf course for more than 20 years will be added to the development to create the 27-hole facility.

An application on the large course was initially made in 2001, but it was put on hold due to the Region's golf course study and the Province's greenbelt plan.

The Region recently approved its Official Plan amendment for the course.

The matter will go before Milton council Monday night.

Planning underway for 150th

Plans are already in the works for the town's 150th anniversary celebration in 2007.

A kick-off meeting of the anniversary master committee was held Wednesday evening at Hugh Foster Hall, where it came together with its sub-committees to discuss the festivities that will be held that year to mark Milton's birthday.

Ward 3 Councillor Cindy Lunau and Wards 2 and 4 Councillor Ron Furik have been appointed as council's representatives on the master committee, which will be responsible for generating ideas for anniversary events and activities.
