

✓ Helping hands

At right, many hands from the hundreds of community volunteers pitch in to sort the mounds of donated non-perishable food items during Saturday's annual Firefighters' Food Drive in support of the Salvation Army's Food Bank. Below, Williard Rath of the Lions Club, one of many members from different service clubs who came out to donate their time, unloads an assortment of food. This year's food drive donations were enough to fill roughly 400 boxes and 300 crates, which amounts to an estimated 20,000 pounds of food — a significant increase over 2004.
