Sentencing held today

Jago said it should be 15 to 18 years, while Rosen made the case for 12 to 14.

Jago agreed with the sentence McClatchey's lawyer, Edward Royle, was requesting — six years in prison.

When given a chance to speak, McClatchey turned to the Stocktons and said: "I'm so sorry this transpired. I'm just so sorry for your loss."

During a number of victim impact statements, court heard Stockton described as a devoted father, husband and brother.

His brush with death as a child had left him with a passion for life, said both his daughter Andrea, 19, and his son, 21-year-old Matthew in their victim-impact statements.

"He's one person I can truly say exemplified the motto 'Live every day to the fullest'," Andrea said.

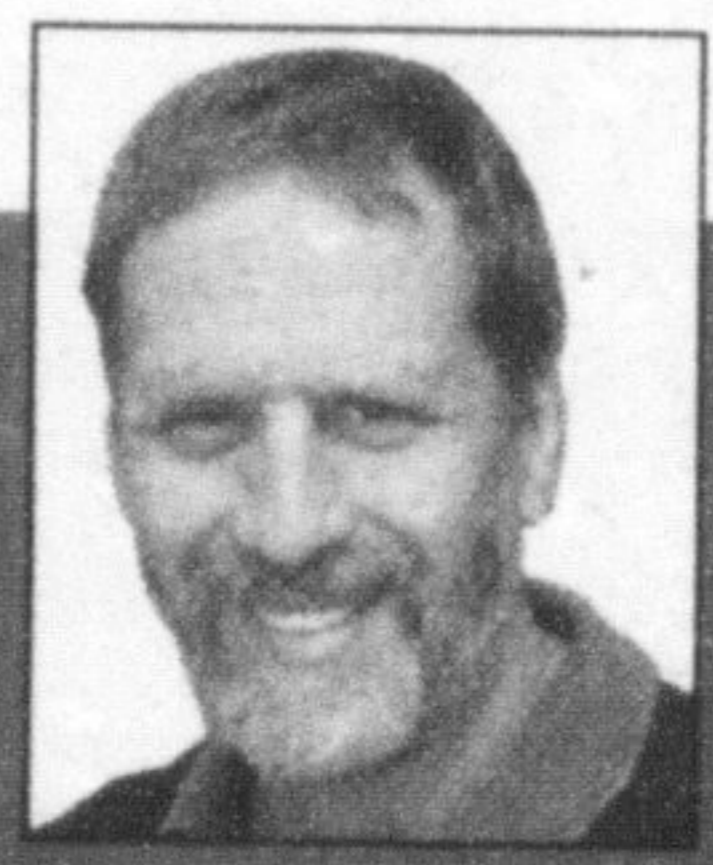

The sentencing takes place today.
