House league novices on HNIC

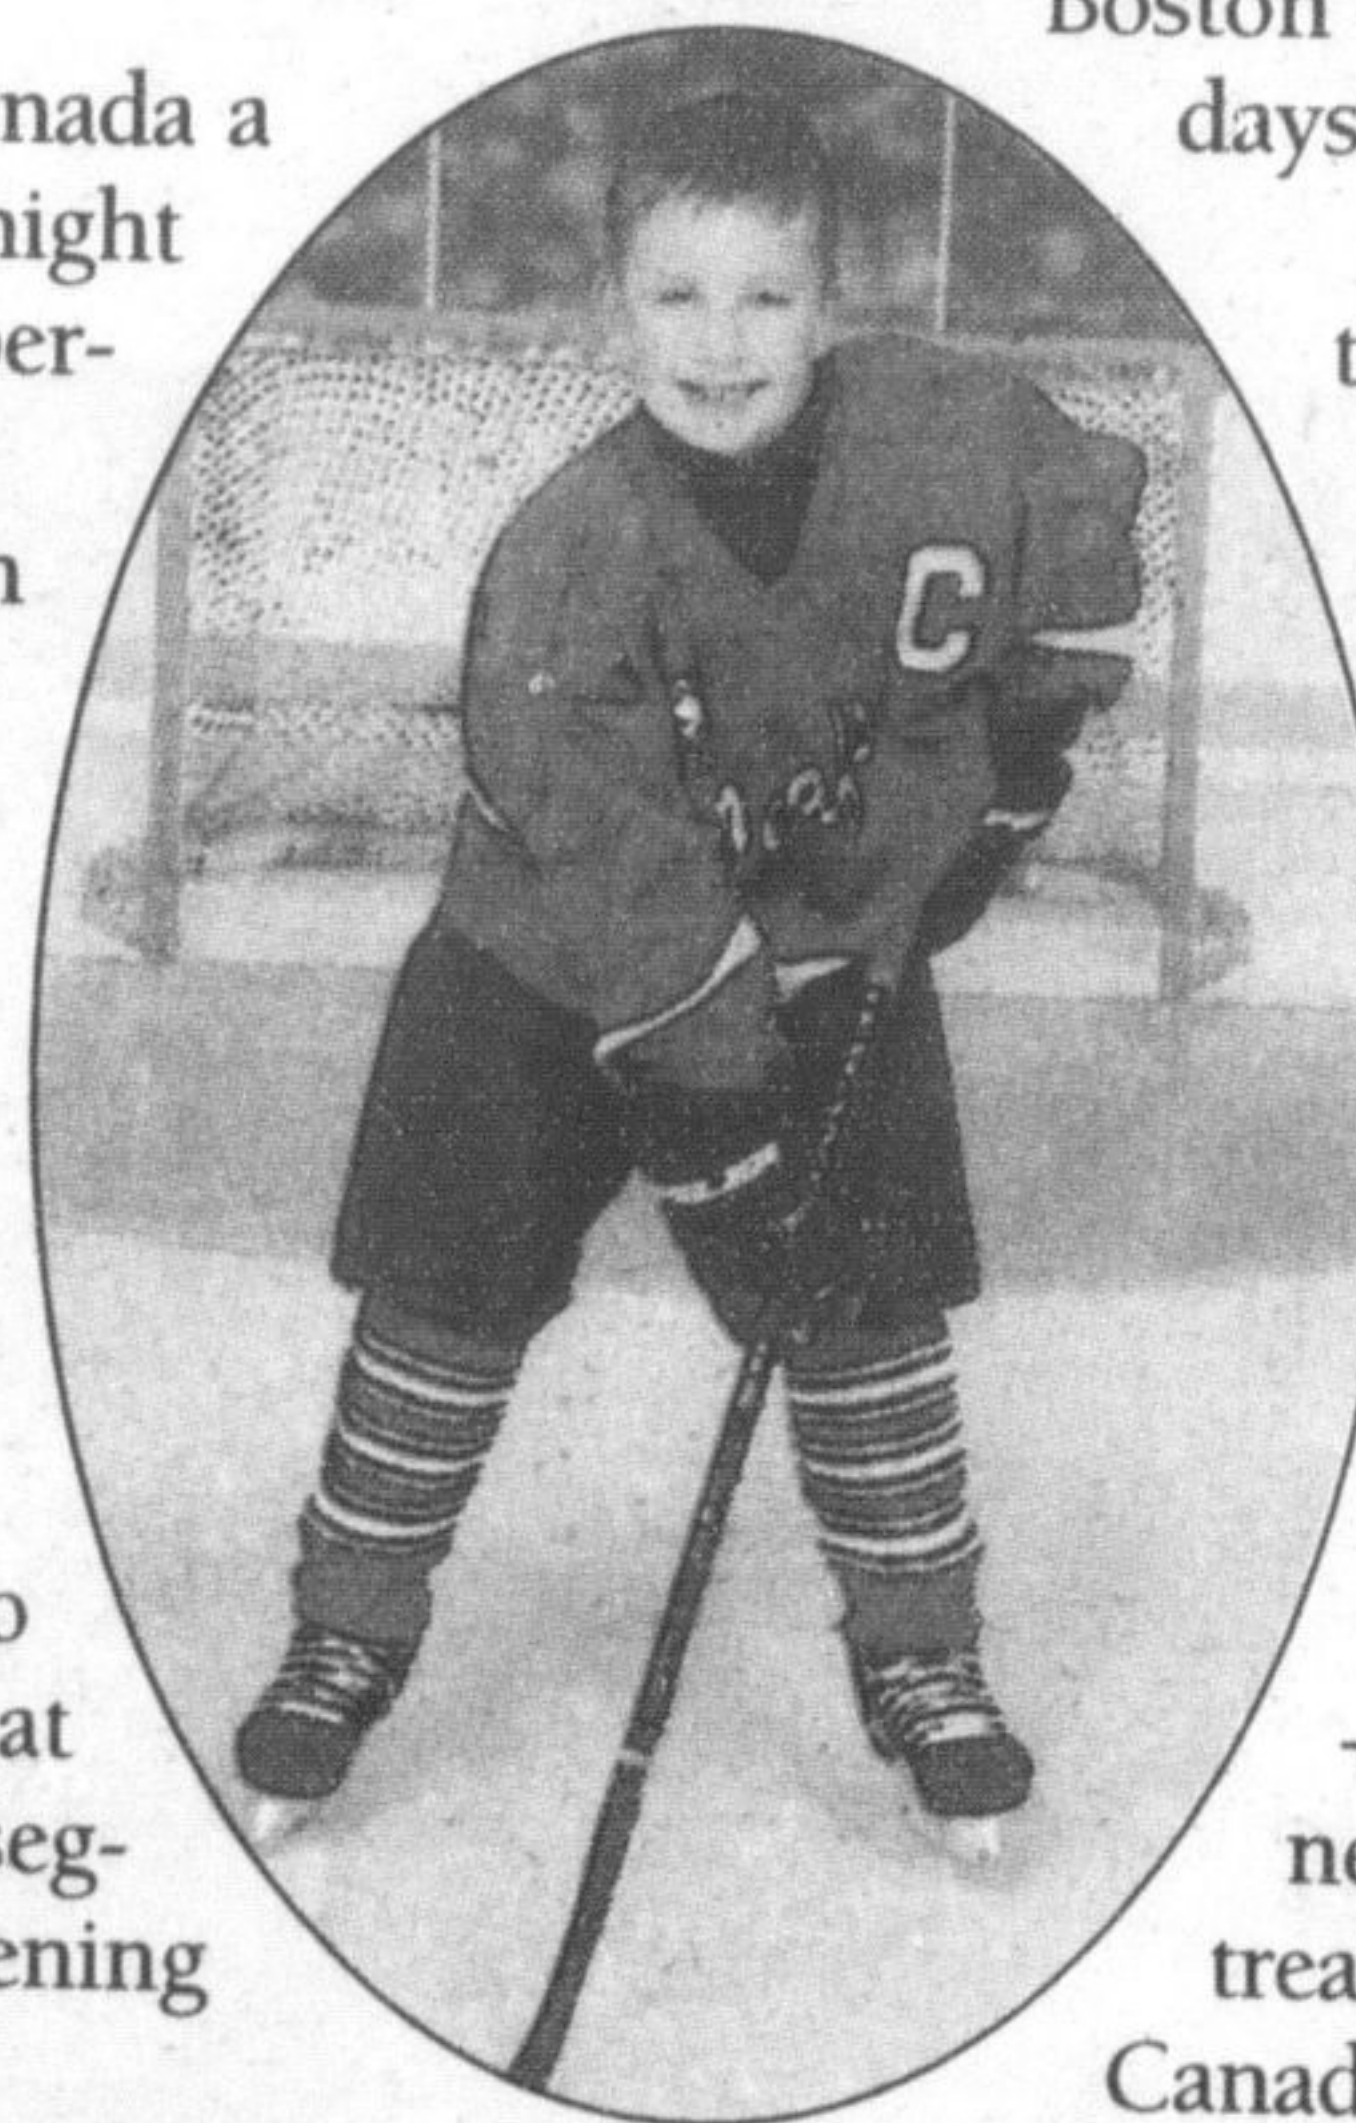

By Steve LeBlanc
CANADIAN CHAMPION STAFF

Tune into Hockey Night in Canada a little early tomorrow and you might just see a familiar place — and perhaps a few familiar faces as well.

Making their national television debut will be the novice house-league Leafs, who as part of HNIC's Hometown Hockey feature will have two spots — pre-taped recently at John Tonelli Sports Centre — airing prior to the Maple Leafs' showdown with the New York Rangers.

Their first appearance is set to introduce the pre-game show at about 6:30 p.m., with the second segment coming right before the opening face-off at 7 p.m.

Sadly enough, this opportunity was born from a team tragedy — after captain Tyler Barnes lost his father Glen in a construction accident in Owen Sound November 15.

Tyler Barnes

Unbeknownst to the young hockey lover, dad had purchased tickets for them to see the Leafs take on Boston — their favourite team — just two days later, a game they'd never get to see.

Hoping to lift Tyler's spirits during this difficult time, an out-of-town friend of the family with contacts at CBC inquired about getting Leaf tickets for him and perhaps some HNIC pucks for him and his teammates. CBC and HNIC took this a huge step forward, sending a film crew to town to tape the local house-leaguers.

Not only that, Tyler and his mom Tracy — currently spending the March break in Newfoundland — will be taken to a Leafs' game next month by limousine. They'll be treated to dinner and a tour of the Air Canada Centre before the puck drops.

"It (Glen's death) was a big hurdle for this team and it was great that this happened for Tyler," said coach Trevor Wadham, who guides the novice Leafs alongside Rob Atkinson.
