MD wins film award

Think of it as the Oscars of the student film circuit.

Last month, the Eddies — Halton District School Board's student film festival — held its annual gala awards night, with Milton District High School taking an award in the special effects category.

Held at E.C. Drury High School May 25, the festival celebrated the more than 50 films entered in the competition by both elementary and secondary school students.

The annual festival provides a forum for young people to communicate their ideas through the creative use of video. This year was the fifth awards evening, and involved about 200 students.

"Each year the judges are amazed by the quality of these student-produced films," said Jeff Bowman, communications and multi-media administrator at the Halton District School Board. "Students use digital camcorders and do the post-production work on computers, which allows them to develop their visual literacy skills and understanding of film as a communication medium."

Milton District's award-winning film is entitled 'iPods and iTips for Dummies', and is by students Bethany McCollum, Brian Best and Evelyn Zielinski.

The award-winning films will be available for viewing by the end of the month at www.theeddies.ca.

Funky Mamas coming to Kelso

A hip musical group with an environmental message will appeal to kids of all ages tomorrow at Kelso Conservation Area.

The Funky Mamas will take to the stage from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. as part of Conservation Halton's Parks Discovery Day, in which admission to each of its six parks is free.

Since 1998 the group of five women has been transporting Canadian audiences on a musical journey. Harmonizing vocals and playful instrumentation are wrapped up in a captivating and unique performance of folk-infused music.

With more than a dozen instruments, the Funky Mamas play original and traditional tunes while painting a musical picture that inspires creativity and dancing.

Their tunes are interactive and educational. The group shares environmental concepts about water conservation, the importance of diversity and treading lightly on Mother Earth.

Discovery Day visitors will receive a goodie bag with a seedling tree to plant at home.

Kelso Conservation Area is located on Kelso Road, off Tremaine Road.
