10...9...8...7... The count down until the end of school has officially begun! With only nine days until the summer season starts and only a few days more until the end of school, things here at MD are as wild and crazy as ever.

Exams are only about a week away and now would be as good a time as any to crack open the books and start trying to learn the lessons that you may have slept through, earlier on in the semester. Exam schedules have been out for the last couple weeks, so be sure to find out when your exams are. Just as importantly, make any arrangements needed, to accommodate any conflicts.

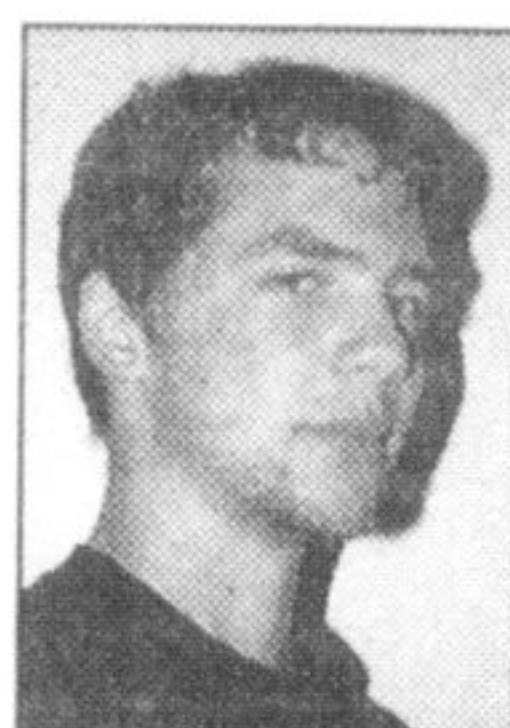

For a certain group of students, these exams will be the last ones that they need to write in high school. These last couple weeks, senior students especially, have been buzzing with excitement. The topic of conversation? Prom, of course. June 28th is just around the corner and many grads have been discussing nothing but dates, dresses and limos.

Next to prom though, there has also been much talk of this year's valedictorian. Congratulations to our three nominees, Kristen George, Jill Martin and Deborah Stead. Each of these candidates will be giving a sample speech at this year's Grad Breakfast, which will be taking place on June 16th at 8:15. Yes, this may be a little earlier than you grads normally get up for school, but it will surely be a worth while endeavour to get yourselves out of bed to hear the candidates' speeches (and get a free breakfast in the process!)

Now, we wouldn't want you to get the wrong impression here. MD's grads aren't the only ones with excitement in their lives this time of year. In the week following the fantastic Sports and Spirit week, put on by our student athletic association, MD was host to a spectacular array of talent. Last Thursday marked the date of an extraordinary talent show. With bands, singers, actors and cheerleaders filling the theatre, it's no wonder MD is tagged with the slogan "Nothing but the best."

Naturally though, in order to uphold this association, the students here must be getting back to the drawing boards and finish off those last culminating activities before exams. Keep your chins up, we're on the home stretch!

June is already here and Bishop Reding's students are feeling the heat. The last month of school is action packed. Grads are hurrying around trying to make sure that everything is done and perfect, the music students are wondering what will happen to their band after all the grads leave, and the athletics department is busy with the athletic banquet. To find out what's going on at your school, read on.

The Graduating Class has been extremely busy over the past few weeks. On Wednesday June 7, Mrs. Doyle and a host of grade twelve students conducted a lovely mass dedicated to all the grads. Many of the senior students were involved in the celebration of this special service doing readings or presenting gifts. The grads were also honored with a dress-up civvies day. Special thanks to all students and staff involved in the planning and execution of all the graduation events. Seniors still have the graduation brunch and ceremony to look forward to; they will take place on Thursday March 29th. Look for more details soon in the Royal Report!

Your Inside Sources are so dedicated to their job that they even went to the Prom just to document an accurate account of what happened. We are happy to report that this year's Prom, held at Le Dome in Oakville, was beautiful. With a great menu and a perfect mixture of old and new music, the memory of Prom is sure to stay with our graduates forever. A special mention goes to Ms. Bujold and Mr. Vacca (aka MC Vacca) for dancing up a storm. It's too bad MC Hammer was not there to witness the 'mad skills' Mr. Vacca exhibited. We wish all the best to the 2006 Grads!

The year isn't over yet for the BR music department! With a performance by the senior concert band and choir last week at the Graduation mass, as well as a field trip out to two elementary schools with the grade 12 guitar class, students and teachers are still hard at work. This Friday, the band and choir will perform in a service honoring the retirement of Mrs. Yarema, a former principal of Bishop Reding. On June 16th, senior students make their final appearances for concerts at Guardian Angels and St. Peters schools. The music department does their final salute this year at the graduation ceremony, where graduates are sent off with a flourish. Grade twelves will be sorely missed by both band and choir next year, but we're sure they'll be back to visit. Congratulations to Mr. Alfano and Ms. Caruana for a job well done.

Only two more weeks left of school BR, so make it count. Until next week, this is your Inside Sources signing off.

It's a great time to be a student at Drury. The countdown to the end of the year has begun, and everyone is keeping busy.

Those students who will be graduating at the end of the year took time out of their hectic schedules to fill out and submit a grad poll. Every year, students are nominated by their peers in a variety of categories. This year, the categories ranged from "Class Clown" to "Cutest Couple" to "Best All Around Person". On May 31st, the winners of these categories and many others were revealed at a special event in the staff dining room. The grads were able to enjoy the unveiling of the winners, followed by free hot dogs and hamburgers for the seniors to celebrate the end of the year. It was an event to remember!

Speaking of graduating students, the Graduate Profiles have been circulating in the past week. Every student planning to graduate by the end of this school year should fill out these profiles, as they will be included in the yearbook. Here's your chance to share your Favorite Drury Moment, your Cutest Feature, your Favorite Saying and many more. Get your Graduate Profiles into Student Services as soon as possible.

Nothing marks the end of the year like the annual Coffee House. Each year, students from grades nine throughout twelve put on an amazing show for friends and family. Some students read poetry or short stories; some dance while others sing. There is never a dull moment at the Coffee House, and this year was no exception. The event, which was run by Mr. Keane, provided friends and family with a look at the individual talents of the students here at Drury. We would like to thank all the participants. Hopefully, we'll see you all again next year!

The end of the year would not be complete without a field trip or two. Early last week, the Blue House was declared the winner of the House Competition at Drury. Throughout the year, the eight houses have been competing against each other for the prize—a trip to Wonderland! On June 13th, the members of the Blue House had the opportunity to enjoy day in the sun at Wonderland with their friends. In addition to the Blue House, the music students also traveled to Wonderland on May 29th where, due to scheduling misunderstandings, they were unable to play. Nevertheless, they profited from the warm weather and enjoyed their time at Wonderland. Way to go!

That concludes this week's edition of Dataline Drury. We hope you enjoy the amazing weather and we'll see you next week.
