

Charity tournament has become annual reunion

• from SHOOTING on page A11
 from Milton. There's lots of guys here from London, where Mike went to school at Fanshawe College, and from Dundas where Doug had moved to."

That widespread support mirrors that of another local charity event — the well-established Leslie Wells Slo-Pitch Tournament.

While there's a number of local sports enthusiasts who take part in both, Shooting for Angels generally attracts a younger crowd — with the field primarily made up of late teen and early 20s cagers.

Moore explained the tournament — which included a silent auction, three-point challenge and after-party Saturday night at John Tonelli Sports Centre — has quickly become a type of late-summer reunion, adding that he hadn't seen many participants and volunteers in months.

Added Gallinger. "It's also given us a chance to meet some of the other people Mike and Doug knew. There's a common bond between all of us and it's a really good spirit here."

HOLDING COURT: Shooting for Angels organizers (from left) Ryan Eacrett, Greg Moore, Adam Scott and Tom Gallinger take a break from last weekend's second annual event — which they organize and also compete in as Bif Stiffness and the Nobodies.
