East-end plaza is approved

A proposed east-end neighbourhood plaza with things like a fitness centre and self-brew business has received a stamp of approval from town council.

The plans, put forward by Mattamy Homes, slate the building for land at the southeast corner of Derry Road and Holly Avenue.

In addition to the aforementioned businesses, Mattamy's project also calls for the plaza to contain a commercial school and 'live/work' units, which means there'd be space for a business on the main floor and an apartment above.

Council approved a zoning bylaw amendment to change the land from a future development zone to local commercial and business commercial zones at its meeting Monday night.

Council okays auto auction expansion

An expansion of Toronto Auto Auctions' vehicle storage area has been approved by town council.

A zoning bylaw amendment that'll make way for 2,185 more parking spaces at the auction's Lawson Road operation was passed by council Monday evening.

The expansion — a gravel-based parking area — will be on a 25-acre property adjacent to its business that it's leasing from the Ontario Realty Corporation (ORC).

A portion of the lands will be used by the Town for a public linear trail system — such as a bike path.

THE CONSERVATION ZONE HOME ELECTRICITY TRICKS

Peter Love
Chief Energy Conservation Officer of Ontario

Phantoms are afoot in Ontario!
Halloween is just around the corner and the ghosts and goblins will be out in force. But did you know that there are phantoms lurking in your home all year round stealing your electricity?

If you've never heard of "phantom load", you're certainly not alone. These energy stealers live among us every day in the form of a steady, slow drip of wasted energy from the many appliances and other equipment in our homes.

Add up the phantom kilowatt-hours used in the more than 4 million Ontario households, and it's easy to see how much energy is wasted every day. According to Natural Resources Canada, these lost kilowatt-hours represent up to six per cent of our energy consumption per year, or nearly a whole month's worth of electricity.

Finding the phantoms

When you turn off an appliance, is it really off? Not always! From coffee-makers to televisions to laptop computers, many electrical appliances can't be switched off completely without unplugging them.

Today, an average home may contain at least 25 phantom loads: cordless phones, televisions, DVD players — even doorbells.

Like most phantoms, phantom loads are easier to spot at night. Track them down by turning off all your lights and looking for the telltale glow of LEDs or other tiny lights. It can be shocking to realize how many of these green or red-eyed phantoms stare back at you!

Who you gonna call? Load Busters!

Power bars can help stop electricity losses due to phantom load. By plugging your computer, television, DVD player and stereo into a power bar, you can stop them from drawing phantom load simply by switching off the power bar.

And as always, switching to ENERGY STAR® models for those appliances that are impractical to unplug is also a good way to conserve electricity.
