Centre offers training for career in construction

Program has 2 parts

Young people between the ages of 18 and 30 are being given an opportunity to train for a construction career with a Burlington company through the Centre for Skills Development and Training.

Best of all, a job is guaranteed at the end of the program for successful graduates with the company, Scott Steel Erectors.

The Metal Building Systems Erectors Certificate Program is a two-part program that consists of eight weeks in-class, hands-on training and 10 weeks of monitored and paid work placement.

"If young people like to work outdoors and are interested in traveling across Canada to work, all expenses paid, this may be the program for them," said Nancy Moore, senior programs manager at The Centre.

Program held in Burlington

The program is held at The Centre's Burlington training facility and takes students out on job sites within the first few weeks of the program.

Students learn how metal building systems are built, drawing, blueprint reading, welding, cladding and roofing. They also gain certification in fall arrest training, standard first aid, WHMIS and workplace communication skills.

Scott Steel Erectors Inc. has projects across Canada and the United States and as far away as the Bahamas and Jamaica.

"We're looking for people who want to build a long-term career," said Dan Scott, president of Scott Steel Erectors.

For more information on the program, visit www.thecentre.on.ca or www.scottsteelers.com or call Kat at (905) 333-3499, ext. 121, to register for a free information session.
