

Pond death was accidental

Man drowned after falling out of boat

Police have determined the death of a man whose body was pulled from an old quarry pond in Campbellville last Friday was accidental.

The body of Waterdown resident Michael Cowl, 44, was discovered by police divers in a pond on Reid Sideroad, west of Guelph Line.

Police said he drowned; it's not known how long he'd been in the water before he was found.

Investigators have determined the man was trespassing in the privately owned pond, going fishing. He stood up in his moving boat and fell overboard, police said.

The deceased wasn't a good swimmer and there were no personal flotation devices on board.

Police were alerted that something was amiss in the area of the pond April 19 by a concerned citizen, said Halton Regional Police Det. Sgt. Murray Drinkwater. Upon arrival, they found a truck with a boat trailer, and a partially submerged boat in the pond.

Police divers found the body the next day. A post mortem examination was conducted at Hamilton General Hospital.

The return court date was set

The horrific two-vehicle collision took place February 2 on Regional Road 25, south of No. 5 Sideroad, killing a 48-year-old motorist just before 3 a.m.
