Doing business with government?

The Region's Business Development Centre is offering to teach local companies how to do business with government through a seminar Thursday, June 7.

The event is geared toward business owners in Halton who want to understand the procurement process at different levels of government.

"The government and broader public sector are significant markets for Halton's businesses," said Regional Chair Gary Carr.

"This seminar is just one of the ways that the Business Development Centre is connecting local businesses to opportunities that can lead to impressive results for them and our community."
