Firm kicks off '70 Days of Caring' at Darling Home for Kids

As part of its '70 Days of Caring' campaign, Mississauga employees of Baxter Corporation (Canada) presented the Darling Home for Kids in rural Milton with a cheque for more than $20,000.

The donation will fund a new volunteer program that will enhance access to pediatric hospice, palliative and respite care for chronically ill children and their families in the community.

The Baxter grant to the Darling Home for Kids (previously known as Rose Cherry's Home for Kids) was issued by Baxter's philanthropic arm — the Baxter International Foundation, which funds initiatives that focus on increasing access to healthcare, particularly for the disadvantaged and underserved, in and near communities where Baxter employees live and work.

"Every day at Baxter we work to manufacture products that improve and save lives. Our grants and donations are another way we can help people within our communities," said AnnMarie Mercer, Baxter Canada's director of human resources and communications.

The Darling Home for Kids is the only facility in Ontario with a mandate to provide families with a continuum of care and support from a child's initial diagnosis through respite care and into palliation and bereavement support.

With Baxter's funding, the home will now be able to expand the volunteer program and enhance its services," said Kristin Horrell, manager of fundraising, administration and development for the Darling Home for Kids.

Horrell explained that volunteers will help provide support and deliver programs that go beyond the basic medical needs of the children and their families.

"Many of the children that we service also have physical and/or developmental delays in addition to being medically fragile, so they need extra assistance to participate in activities," she said.

"Having caring volunteers on site allows these children to take part in activities like recreational and music therapy, storybook reading, baking cookies or playing computer games. They can go on a nature walk, do arts and crafts or just have someone to talk to."

Volunteers will also help maintain the 7,300-square-foot home, which sits on 77 acres of woodlands.

It's one of several community volunteerism activities Baxter Canada employees are engaging in during the company's national '70 Days of Caring' campaign. The campaign supports Baxter's international community commitments while also celebrating Baxter Canada's 70 years of service.

Employees from Baxter's Mississauga head office were on hand to present the cheque and provide hands-on help to spruce up the home in advance of upcoming scheduled visits by children and their families.
