because it is a family activity.

We check the bottom of plastic bottles for the recycle triangle. If there's a 1 or 2 inside the triangle, that plastic bottle goes in the Blue Box.

Daughter bows out in poker, but the other hits the jackpot

• from IT on page B3

10:30 — My oldest daughter receives the marriage proposal from her boyfriend.

12:50 — The phone rings, before it should. Bad news. My daughter has been knocked out of the tournament. She had pocket aces (the best hand possible) and raised. A player called with 10 and 9 of hearts, and the flop comes with two hearts. My daughter bets and the other person raises her all-in. My daughter knows she's got the best of this and calls. She's about 80 per cent to win the hand with the final card to come and only a heart that can hurt her. A heart it is, and instead of being close to first place, she's knocked out in 170th place.

12:51 — I go to bed.

Epilogue — The lady who knocked my youngest daughter out of the tournament apologizes the next day, but my daughter is still upset about it. Tony Soprano may or may not have been whacked, the wolf does not get the picnic basket, and my oldest daughter said yes.
