Not trying to ride Malcolm's coattails

 began following Malcolm after Idol. The debut CD is a bit more on the pop side than the next one will be for that reason, said Rooke, a Speyside resident.

He hopes one day the band will be able to move beyond the Canadian music market, and said traveling to the U.S. and even countries like Japan appeal to him at this point.

"I think it would be really nice to travel with the band," he said.

Carter, who's lived in Milton for the past four years, said he's grateful for the foot in the door Malcolm's experience on Canadian Idol has given the band, but said it doesn't affect them much.

"That's his past," Carter said, explaining the style of Low Level Flight is quite different from the album Malcolm released on label Sony BMG after winning Canadian Idol. "We're not trying to ride on the coattails of Idol."

As for Malcolm himself, Carter said the lead singer has the all-important ability to keep everyone in line and ensure they practise hard, while still having fun.

"Ryan keeps me in line. I've always wanted someone who's able to push me like he does. He brings out the best in us."

Although the future offers a good deal of uncertainty, Carter said he's enjoying every minute of it and is optimistic about what might be in store for the group.

"I love living on the edge. For me, it keeps the days interesting. I like to expect the unexpected."

Carter, Noronha and Rooke all mentioned the strong friendships they have with each other as a definite bonus — and one of the main reasons they're enjoying the ride to the top so much.

"These are four of my best friends in the world," Rooke said.

CD release on Sunday

Brad Woods has a story to tell and he plans to do just that at his CD release event Sunday.

The local session, held at Milton Bible Church on Main Street at 7 p.m., will officially launch the collection of stories Woods recently recorded. The evening will also include music by local singer/songwriter Kevin Morse.

Admission costs $20 per person and $25 per couple and includes a copy of Woods' CD. Coffee and desserts will be provided by Café Deda.

Seating for the event will be limited. For more information visit www.greatwoodentrio.com.
