Did You Know?

(MS) — According to a June 2007 Canadian Labour Force survey, the number of full-time workers increased beginning in June and part-time employment fell. The majority of new jobs were held by women. Additionally, self-employment has followed a strong upward trend since October 2006 with gains since then totalling 174,000. Several industries have increased their number of self-employed workers, including accommodation and food services; educational services; "other" services; and finance, insurance, real estate and leasing.
