Something For Everyone In Your Family

McLaren laid to rest in Myanmar

• from HALTON'S page C2
 In early March of 1997, the six Canadian Second World War airmen were laid to rest with full military honours at the Commonwealth War Grave Commission's Taukkyan War Cemetery near Yangon, Myanmar (also known as Rangoon, Burma). Family representatives of the six crew members — among them McLaren's sister, Elinor Brown — attended the funeral ceremony.

"Today, we mark the final stop on a journey that started a lifetime ago, when the lives of these six young men were taken — and given — in service to their country," said Secretary of State (Veterans) Lawrence MacAulay during the funeral service.

"From cities and towns across Canada, these six young men found themselves together at a moment in time that ended their lives and forever changed those of family and friends thousands of miles away; every mother's son, every father's pride and joy, a hero to a brother or sister. Now they were gone forever."

Other services available to veterans

• from LOCAL on page C1
 and more who are eligible, MacNab said.

Receiving a disability pension serves as a gateway to other programs and services, such as the Veterans Independence Program, which includes house-keeping and home care services. MacNab said applying for a disability war pension is no longer dependent on the veteran's income.

German now feels like he's finally gotten his due, although he wishes it hadn't taken so long.

"I said to my daughter I only wish her mother was here to enjoy it with me," he said.
