These are the clothes

That were washed and dried during the weekend when rates were lower

Which helped save money on your electricity bill

And reduced the strain on our power system

And decreased our impact on the environment

Which is comforting for everyone

Like warm clothes out of the dryer.

We all need to be smarter about our electricity use.

Smart meters are here and the price you pay for electricity will depend on when you use it. During evenings and weekends, you will be able to take advantage of lower, off-peak rates. Shifting some of your use is another step in helping us all better manage our electricity consumption. And that will be better for our power system and the environment.
