Youth making name for herself in theatre

Isabella Lobo is quickly making a name for herself in the world of theatre — and she's just 11 years old.
 The Milton girl is currently starring in 'Festen,' a production of The Company Theatre, which is playing at the Berkeley Street Theatre, 26 Berkeley St., in Toronto. It will run until Saturday, Dec. 13.

"The show is doing very well. Word is spreading among theatre-goers and they are telling their friends that they must go see it," said Isabella's mother, Joanne.

Isabella plays alongside a cast that includes Eric Peterson of Corner Gas fame, Nicholas Campbell of Da Vinci's Inquest and Rosemary Dunsmore.

The play is written by David Eldridge and is based on a Danish film of the same name about the 60th birthday party of Helge Klingefeldt (Peterson) and the dark skeletons that are revealed at the celebration.

The play keeps Isabella extremely busy, since there's a show every weeknight, plus two shows each Saturday. But she's taking it all in stride.

Isabella had her professional stage debut last year in the Canadian Stage Company's production of The Pillowman.

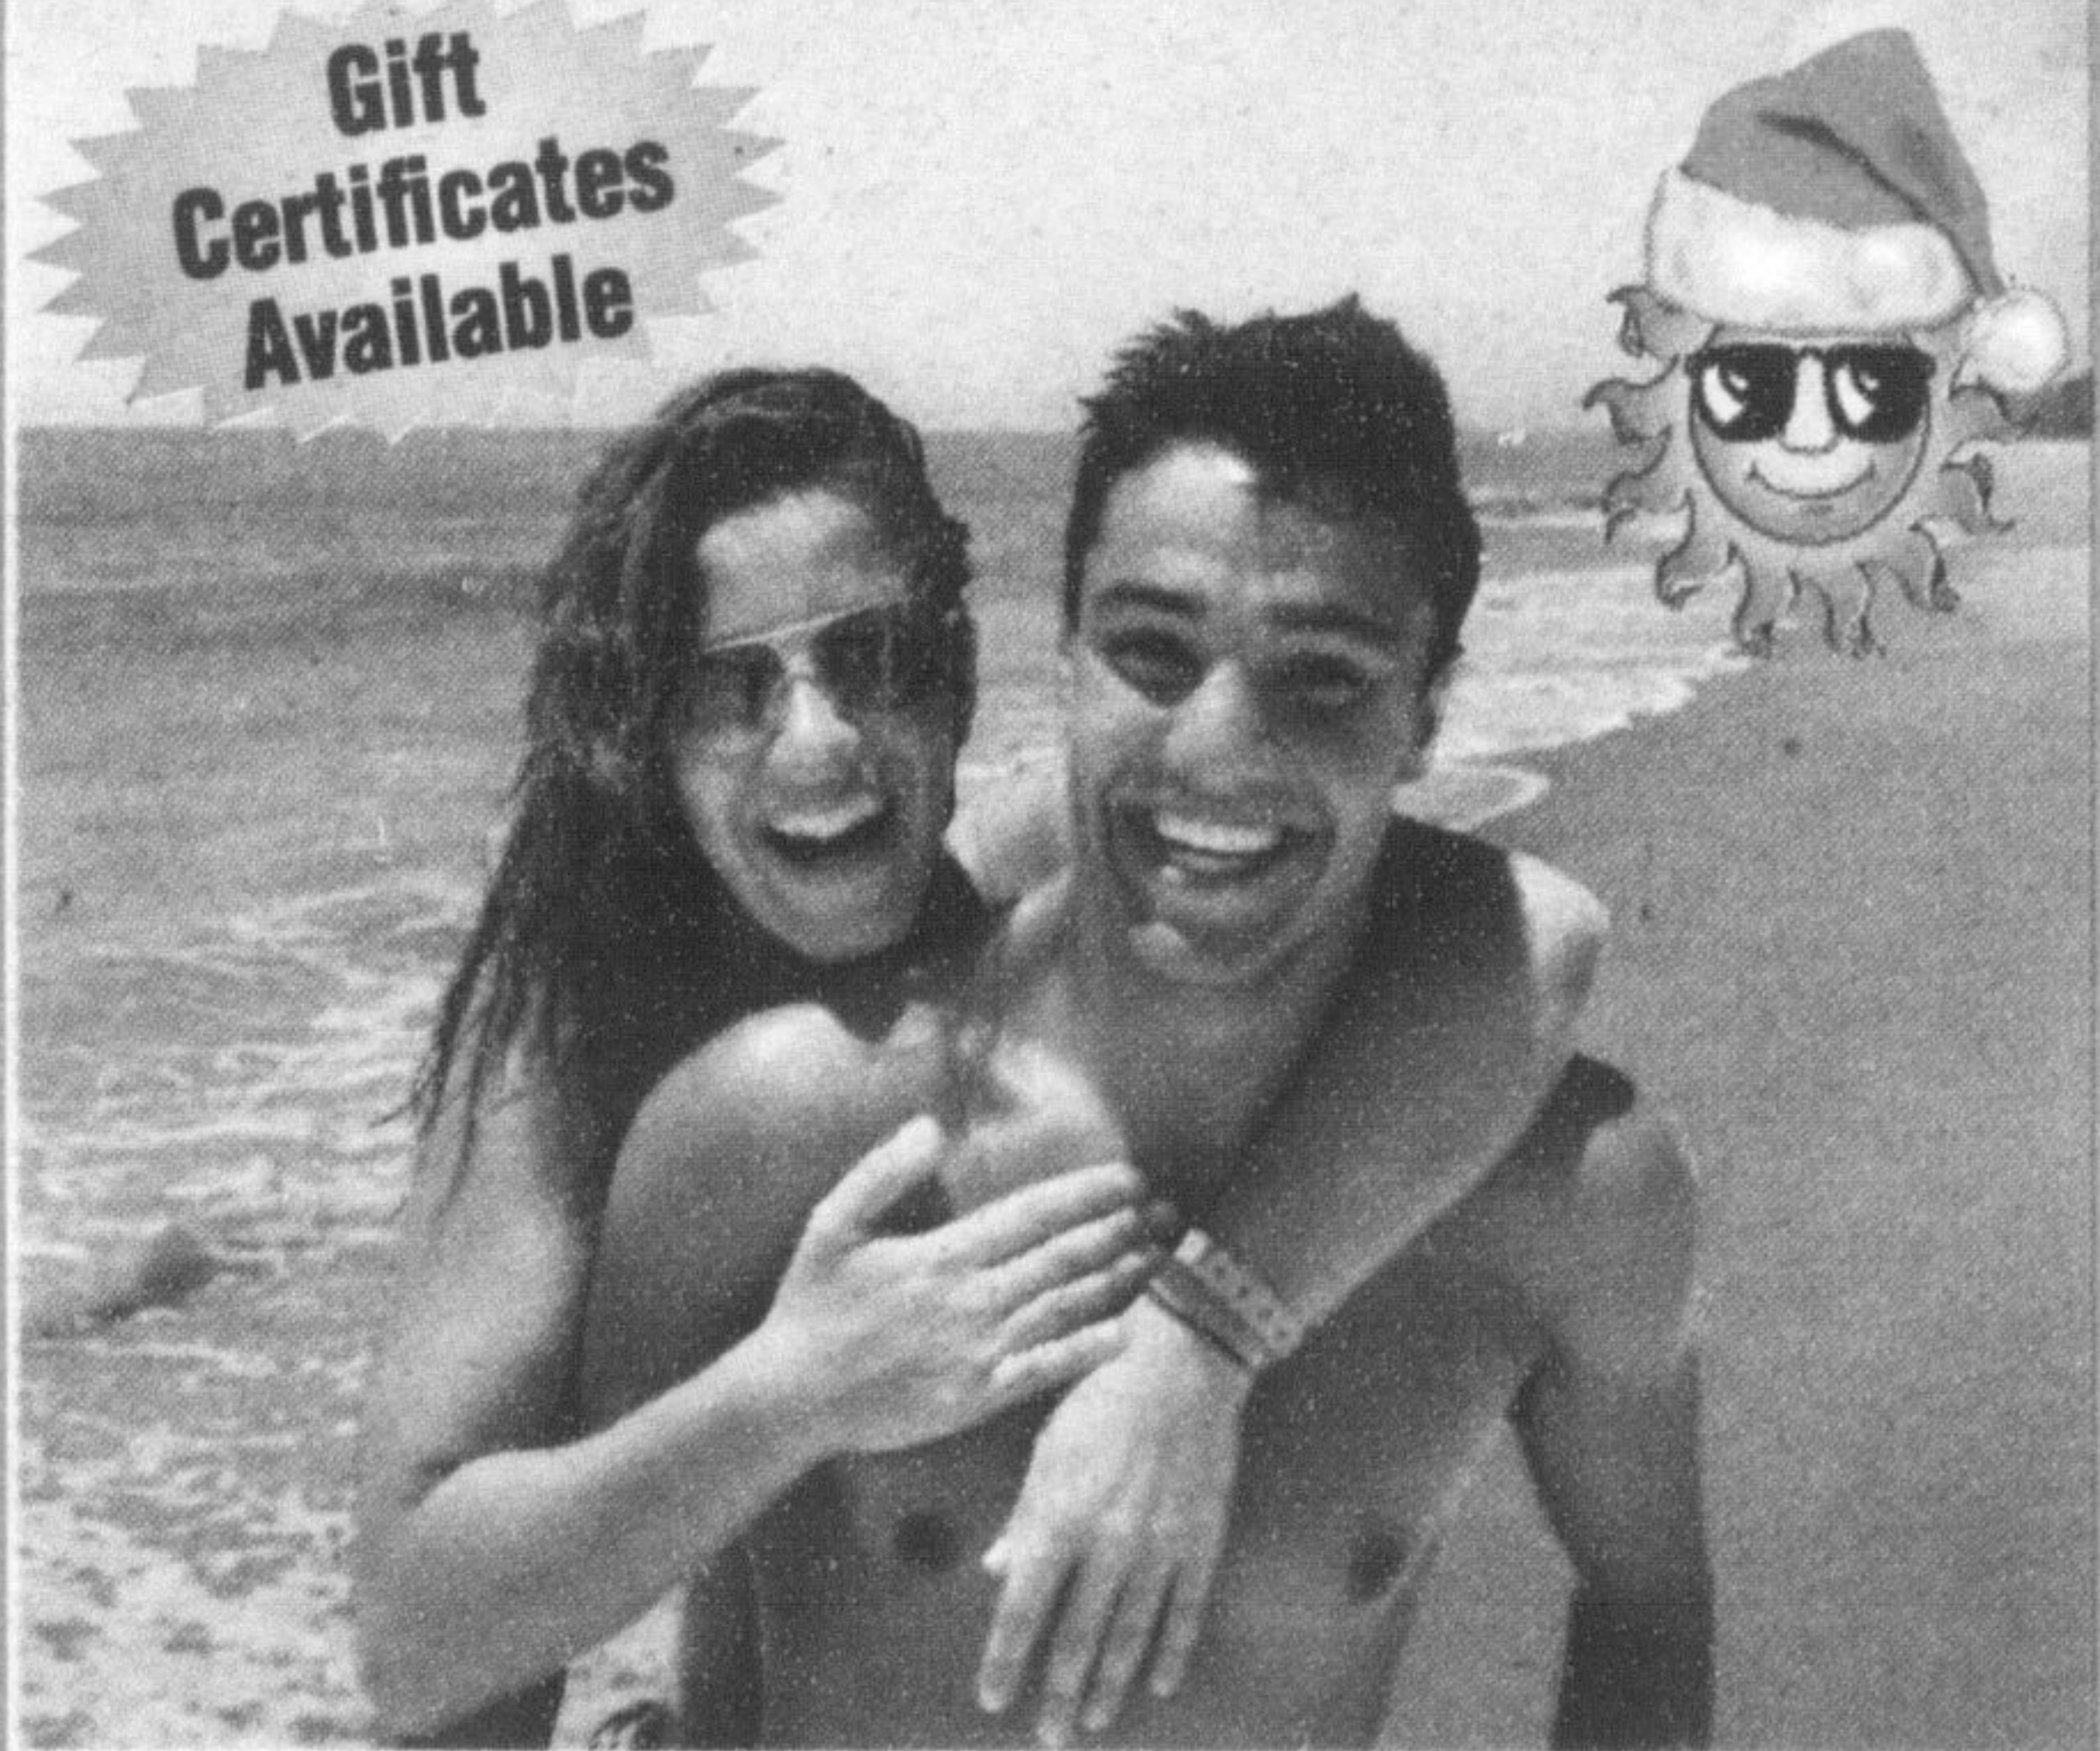

She has also appeared in the television shows Mayday, Wonderfalls and Chasing Alice, as well as the animated series The Reading Adventures of Super Why for PBS and the radio drama The Novena Sisters for CBC Radio.

Tickets for Festen cost $20 to $40 and can be purchased by calling (416) 368-3110 or on-line at www.canstage.com or www.companytheatre.ca.
