Mother draws strength from sons' bravery

• from TOWN on page A1

"The bravery of my two sons will give me the strength to carry on," Ann said, adding so will her memories of Greg's "infectious laugh, his brilliant smile and his tremendous courage and strength."

The will to move forward will also come from her partner, Zack Sariov, who was instrumental in organizing the blood drive and raising awareness of the stem cell bank, as well as from her children, Jonathan, Jessica and oldest son Jason, Ann said.

The support the community has shown over the past few months has been overwhelming.

"This wonderful town of Milton that we call home embraced us and fought with us, and I thank them," Ann said.

Sariov echoed her sentiments.

"This small town, which we are proud to call our home, has had their thoughts and prayers with Gregory throughout the difficult journey," he said, adding, "Although his leaving may have caused pain and grief, his going has eased his heart, his pain, and given him relief."
