Second suspect charged in child prostitution probe

Police have charged a suspect jointly with a Milton man who's currently before the courts on child prostitution-related charges.

The Halton Police Child Abuse and Sexual Assault (CASA) Bureau, in a co-ordinated effort with Peel Regional Police, charged 24-year-old

David Stone of Mississauga with numerous offences including gang sexual assault, aggravated sexual assault, human trafficking and unlawful confinement.

He's charged jointly with Aldain Beckford of Roper Drive, who was arrested in October and denied bail in Burlington's Ontario Court of Justice in December.

A publication ban has been imposed on details of his bail hearing.

At press time Friday, Stone was to appear in Milton court for a bail hearing.
