"DATELINE DRURY"
 BY AARON TAGATAD, TAKARA WONG & DAYNE LAVIS
 Hello everyone, hope your Easter Holiday went according to planned! Yet again, the Easter bunny managed to come and go without being seen, but of course left an array of chocolate eggs coated with candy... Needless to say, he was forgiven. Moving on! Last week, E.C. Drury students had an pleasant few days leading up to the long weekend. Last Wednesday, April 20th, students had the much anticipated day of sleeping in until 10 A.M. as teachers prepared for the new school opening September 2012 (if it wasn't already mentioned, this will be a monthly routine). Not only did students have the luxury of sleeping in, but the school was closed for Good Friday and Easter Monday- not too bad if I do say so myself! We hope you students will sleep well because of your satisfied marks. Unfortunately if your parents do not share the same regard to your educational results, they might have a little visit with your teacher on April 21st. Yikes! Let us also remind our students that full disclosure is fast approaching, the date being on April 26. So if you were sleeping through math class, you definitely don't want anybody knowing how much you drooled.
 In other news, our very own Mr. Tassive scored a 19 on the beep test. We hope he posts this on his fridge for future generations to see this undeniably great achievement. Another achievement E.C has accomplished was the Metamorphosis Culture-shock show this past Thursday! It was a student-organized event which included Irish and Chinese dance performances, cultural arts, and various exotic delicacies from across international seas. The event raised over a thousand dollars which will be going towards Free the Children's Adopt a Village program which will help to build a community in Sierra Leone! After countless hours of planning, we did it!
 Another student event taking place soon will be the last dance of the year themed, "Bright and Tight" which will be in the school's auditorium on Thursday, April 28th. Students will be shaking, twisting, bopping to the music, and enjoying the night, but for senior students this will be their last school dance until Prom which will be coming up in June. In almost all of the hallways girls can be heard squealing about the colour of their dresses, which shoes they are going to wear, and how they haven't a clue as to how to do their hair. Maybe in the next article the ladies will have their hairstyles figured out, and we'll make sure to tell you all about it.... NOT!
