bison's head, or a bull's. The thing even had horns.

Jason, how excited are you that your idol, Chris Jericho, is due back in WWE soon?

Chase: I'm pretty excited. I've always felt Jericho does a great job overall, whether it was in the ring or on the mic. He can create a story out of thin air. Any night he's on (TV) is a night that'll be worth watching.

Tiger Jr., what one thing is perhaps under-appreciated by today's aspiring wrestlers?

Tiger Jr.: Probably the same thing that can be said for any celebrity-driven industry — the time and sacrifices that it actually took some of the older generations to get where they did. Through that, one would gain much-needed experience and seasoning. Now with the Internet, social media and reality TV, it seems to me that anyone can be an instant celebrity without paying their dues.

Jason, if you were to pick one thing that you've got going for yourself in terms of pro wrestling, what would it be?

Chase: My determination. I started training at 17 after I told my parents this is what I was going to do with my life. My look on life is that if you want something bad enough, it will happen. There's nothing that will stop me from achieving my dream.

Jason, what's the game plan for the next few years?

Chase: I was originally planning on working some time in both Mexico and Japan and then moving to Florida to train/tryout for Florida Championship Wrestling (developmental promotion for WWE). I'm not so sure about Japan for a while, since the disaster over there. Now I plan on just going to Mexico, then Florida.

Tiger Jr., if you could pass along one piece of advice to young wrestling hopefuls, what would it be?

Tiger Jr.: First, get a solid foundation, and by that I mean education. There's nothing wrong with dreaming or aspiring, so long as you deal with reality first. The truth of the matter is that only a small percentage will make it, so give it a shot, but only after getting an education to fall back on.

Jason, what are your hopes for this year's Tigerfest?

Chase: Just like my hopes for every show, do my best
