Be ready to cut next year: Krantz

setting its target market rate for non-union jobs at the 75th percentile. Since 1999/2000 the Halton's market position has slowly eroded to the point where non-union jobs are now at or near the 50th percentile.

"A two per cent adjustment in the salary grid in 2012 would ensure that the Region neither loses nor gains on its current market position," states the report.

All regional councillors expect for Taylor and Burlington Councillor Marianne Meed Ward supported the two per cent raise.

While most councillors were pleased with 2012's low tax increase, Milton Mayor Gord Krantz said he was concerned with regional boards and agencies coming in with budgets

Council approved the Halton Regional Police Service's budget with a 3.2 per cent increase from last year and Conservation Halton's 5.8 per cent budget hike.

"I can't resist sending out a message to boards, agencies and commissions to be prepared to cut next year. We don't know what's coming down from the Province, but we should be preparing ourselves for next year," said Krantz.

The 1.1 per cent tax increase translates to an extra $4.09 on every $100,000 of current value assessment. For a $350,000 home, 2012 regional taxes would be about $1,318.

A free inspection before clearing blocked sewer lines avoids danger!

Natural gas lines can sometimes intersect with sewer lines beyond the outside wall of your home or building. In these cases, clearing a blocked sewer line with motorized or water jetting equipment could damage the natural gas line and lead to a gas leak creating a serious safety risk for you and others.

Call Ontario One Call for a free natural gas sewer safety inspection before trying to clear blocked sewer service lines.
