

Here's a little Christmas advice... free of charge

At my rapidly advancing age I've been through a few Christmases. Even at my rapidly advancing age I've learned and remembered a thing or two. Here are some Christmas observations.

- Don't drink at the company Christmas party. It's the one time you should be most careful because everybody remembers and talks about those parties for years. Let somebody else get drunk and put a lampshade on their head.

- Don't give kids clothes for presents. That's a gift for their parents.
- Ask an adult what they want for Christmas

with MURRAY TOWNSEND

On the loose

and there's a 40 per cent chance (I've done studies) that they'll quip, "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth."

- Nobody's really dreaming of a white Christmas unless they live out in the country somewhere and travel by snowmobile. A lot of us have to drive somewhere that day and are dreaming of warm weather and a green Christmas.

- I have this argument every year about pumpkin pie, which I detest. You don't have brussel sprout, cauliflower or other vegetable pies for dessert, do you? No, you don't.

- Don't stress out so much. Big deal, ultimately it's just a day, and we'll have another one next year.

Every time you donate to Goodwill, you help someone find a job.

Here's how...

Donate Wisely
Not all organizations that collect donations make the best use of them. Some thrift stores solicit donations under the name of a charity but as little as 5 percent of the money generated from these donations may actually go to the charity. At Goodwill, 84 percent of our revenues are funneled directly back into our employment and training programs. Goodwill is consistently ranked among top charities that make your donation go further.
