

Town Hall Expansion

Town Hall Heritage: History Meets Modern Day

The Town Hall, originally built as the County Court House, was completed in 1855. The addition of the Town jail and jail yard took place in 1877. In 1982, the Town purchased the building from Halton Region for just $1 and after restoration in 1985, it became the new Town Hall.

The expansion building (Town Hall East) and renovations to the old Town Hall (Town Hall West) have integrated important historical elements to honour our heritage. The stone walls of the addition are constructed of local limestone, from the same quarry as the Town Hall, to maintain the authentic character of the existing structures.

In Town Hall East, a blueprint of a structure known as the Jailer's House is located in its approximate original location at 48 Hugh Street, at the terminus of Hugh and Queen Streets. Built in 1915, it had many occupants, including the Governor of the Halton Jail who lived there when the building now known as Town Hall served as a courthouse and jail. The structure was demolished in 2007 to make way for the expansion of Town Hall. Window sills and stone lintels from the Jailer's House now form part of the stone fence that contains the parking lot on Mary Street. This same fence also incorporates foundation stone to commemorate the dwellings at 155 and 167 Mary Street, which were relocated in the neighbourhood.

In Town Hall West, a restored wooden handrail guides visitors along the ramp to the new two-storey Milton Room. The handrail was originally installed around 1865 on the stairs to the upper floor of the original Town Hall and Market House, which was located on Main Street East. A statue of Jasper Martin, our town's founder is ensconced in a display case by the ramp. Meeting rooms in both buildings are named after historical townships and neighbourhoods in Milton.

LET THERE BE LIGHT: Last weekend's break from an unseasonal cold stretch was a welcome relief for traffic services contractors, who were out on Main Street replacing traffic light bulbs. These lights have regular bulbs, but the town is in the process of replacing some traffic lights with more visible and energy-efficient LED lights.

Is Your Child on Track?

Don't Wait & See. We can help.

For example, by 18 months of age, your child should be able to:

- Use common expressions:
e.g., "All gone," "Oh oh"
- Walk alone
- Point to show you something
- Show affection toward people, pets or toys

For complete developmental checklists, activities you can do with your child, or to talk about your child's development, call Halton Region or talk to your doctor.
