

Do the WagJag... and save

Everyone loves a bargain and WagJag makes getting a great deal as simple as a click of the computer mouse.

WagJag, a new online local marketplace now supported by the Champion (www.insidehalton.com), provides viewers with the opportunity to click, share and save.

Here's how it works: amazing deals, available locally, are posted on WagJag.com; the deal will only be available if enough people want to make the purchase. If enough people join in a predetermined time frame, they are sent a printable electronic voucher, good for the item offered.

WagJag deals can range from discounts at restaurants to spas to the coolest events, fashions or activities.

"This is different from some of the other 'deal-of-the-day' websites because this is localized, with the advantage that people can visit the site, pick up a great deal from somewhere near them and share the deal with their friends," said Dave Harvey, general manager for Metroland West's Halton Division.

Registration is free and you can earn cash rewards for referring friends. You can also opt to receive email alerts about specific WagJag deals that interest you. For retailers, posting a deal on WagJag is a win-win situation.

Businesses can take the option of newspaper or local online advertising. The deals can bring in new customers, previously unaware of goods and services offered by that local business.

Local businesses will also benefit from the extensive print, online and social network that the WagJag deal will receive. For more information, visit WagJag.com.
