

Staff of 26 in Milton

Precinct patrols 147 square mile area

Direct line for help. For those visiting the Milton detachment after hours (9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) police are as close as the telephone located next to the entrance. It requires no dimes and provides a direct line to Halton Regional Police.

Halton Regional Police in Milton have an approximately 147 square mile area to patrol, containing a population of nearly 30,000.

Their coverage area spans from the Hamilton-Wentworth Town Line on the west side to the Ninth Line on the east border, north to Highway Seven, and south to Lower Base Line Rd.

Located on King St., the Milton police station houses a staff of 26 full time employees, including 20 constables, four sergeants, one staff sergeant and a secretary.

Senior supervision of Milton operations takes place from Georgetown, where a 24-hour staff sergeant provides direction for both Halton Hills officers and Milton police.

Both the police youth officer and crime prevention officer for this area are stationed in Georgetown, as well as the team of north Halton detectives.

Although the Milton office maintains normal working hours from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., a police officer is only a telephone call away, should a visitor wish to make a complaint or enquiry at the Milton facility after hours.

A direct line to a police telephone is located beside the door of the station and it doesn't even require a dime to use.

While there have been complaints from area citizens on the lack of an open station 24 hours a day, the phone system appears to have solved the problem, said police.

According to Deputy Chief Bob Middaugh, putting an individual in the station 24 hours would not be worth the money and would only duplicate the present system which employs a senior officer in Georgetown around the clock.

"There is not a tremendous amount of people walking in here," said Sergeant Nelson Sherwood with reference to the Milton facility.

He estimates there have been as many as 25 in one day, but usually the average is 10.

According to staff sergeant, there have been no further complaints about the lack of police officers.
