

Kevin Jensen Employed as a driver at Maplehurst Correctional Centre, Kevin has ideas of training as a correctional officer. He enjoys working with inmates, he said.

He plans career inside

By Linda Kirby
Kevin Jensen of Guelph spends most of his days on the road, transporting inmates, making deliveries or picking up supplies for Maplehurst Correctional Centre in Milton.

Mr. Jensen plans to complete high school this fall.

An experienced driver, he drove tractors and trucks for a year while staying on the west coast.

He also delivered furniture while helping with the family's upholstery business.

That is his job as a summer student employed by the Ministry of Correctional Services.

But the 19-year-old hopes one day to make a career working inside the walls of Maplehurst.

Although this is his first year working at Maplehurst, he feels he has had sufficient opportunity to learn about the correctional centre to consider a future in correctional services.

"I like working with the inmates," he said, adding he would like to become involved in the rehabilitation of prisoners."

Halton Board of Education trustees got a sneak preview of the long-term special education plan Thursday night in Burlington.

Co-chairmen Ed Miazga and Ron Beckett presented part one of the three part plan. Georgetown trustee Betty Fisher was a member of the committee.

The report states "The focus of Special Education is on the development of the individual pupil with an identified exceptionality, and his or her op-portional development as a skilled and resourceful person in our society."

Provincial Bill 82 attempts to ensure education for all Ontario students, and places the onus on each board to give priority to the education of exceptional children and to provide programs and services to meet their needs. The long term planning is aimed at providing this education.

The report dealt with the education of the exceptional pupil, the educatable mentally retarded pupil, the trainable mentally retarded pupil and the hard-to-serve pupil (physical impairment).

Facilities for special education were also outlined in the report, ranging from regular classroom programs to the opposite end of the spectrum with residential treatment centres.

The committee was highly commended for their work in part one.

Part two and three will be presented to the board in the fall.

He's an agent of the Crown

By Linda Kirby
If Anthony Moustacalis appears a little young to be handling bail hearings and prosecuting careless drivers at the Milton Provincial Court House on Steeles Ave., he is.

But the third-year law student from Osgoode Hall is hardly a newcomer to the court room. The 22-year-old Oakville resident has been employed by the Ministry of the Attorney General for the summer to assist Halton Crown Attorney James Treleaven.

He therefore is acting as an agent for the crown, appearing at bail hearings on behalf of the crown, checking files and researching legal points in criminal cases for the Crown.

"He has the power to make certain decisions. We do rely on his judgement on some cases," explained Crown Attorney James Treleaven.

Anthony Moustacalis decided upon a career in a roundabout way.

Interested in science, he attended a year at York University in the arts faculty. He did well and later became involved with the university radio station as an announcer.

He admits he enjoys people, speaking with them and dealing with people on a personal basis.

He decided then to try law and has not looked back.

Last summer he worked at the Parkdale Legal Aid Clinic in Toronto, where he appeared before court tribunals and offered advice to clients.

He enjoys working at Milton Provincial Court House he said.

In comparison to Toronto, he finds the court is extremely well organized despite a heavy case load.

And while he may be young, he has already registered success with his latest employment.

Suitably impressed by his handling of cases, Burlington lawyer Bruce Hillyer has hired Anthony for the remainder of the summer following his completion of the Experience '81 program at the end of this month.

Fire stats

The number of fires in Milton this year continues to be less than the record setting pace of 1980.

In his regular report, Fire Chief Jim Coulson notes his men responded to 157 calls as of May 31.

This is down 24 calls from the 181 responded to during the same period in 1980.

Anthony Moustacalis He is a busy man this summer as an assistant to Halton Crown Attorney James Treleaven, left. The 22-year-old Oakville resident will be conducting bail hearings on behalf of the Crown as well as aiding with legal research.

Sewer appeals mean $226,000 less revenue

Successful appeals of the regional water-sewer program in 1980 has resulted in $226,000 less being billed to some Halton water and sewer users.

In many cases the appeals are based on water not being returned to the sewage system for treatment.

But he added this amount was expected and there was a budget allowance of $224,200 set aside for this purpose. Mr. Loudon said he expects the total reduction to be between $250,000 and $300,000 when final totals are added up.

In Milton the reduction was $60,700 and $10,500. As of June 30 of this year there had been a total of 92 appeals.

Halton water-sewer consultant R.M. Loudon told the Water-Sewer Rate Committee successful appeals have resulted in a reduction of $226,000 from the original estimates.

But he added this amount was expected and there was a budget allowance of $224,200 set aside for this purpose. Mr. Loudon said he expects the total mostly business, all the water is used up, or it is treated on site, therefore allowing these groups to appeal the surcharge.
