Simply delicious
Picnics, cottage dinners and backyard barbecues are what summer is all about. All this entertaining means toil in the kitchen for someone though.

Light meals of salads and cold meat slices go over well with guests and cooks alike. Breakfast, dessert, hors d'oeuvres and a nutritious snack can be made with the same ease without turning on the stove or oven.

All that is needed is an assortment of fresh fruit, a touch of honey and some yogurt and a dish suitable for any time of the day is at your fingertips.

Fruit Kabobs with Yogourt Fruit Dip are a sure hit on lazy summer days. It is a dish to please guests and keep the cook cool.

Fruit Kabobs with Yogourt Fruit Dip

Barry Bauman is back from Jamboree

Belated birthday greetings to Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Edwards and Cecil Patterson both on July 31. Arthur Peacock Aug. 2 and Frank Chisholm Aug. 3.

Friends will be sorry to learn that Mrs. Florrie Snow is a patient in Milton District Hospital. Mrs. Snow had a fall in her garden and suffered broken ribs and other injuries.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. Clifford Stover of Milton on the accidental death of his son this past week.

This correspondent and family were Sunday visitors with the Bouman family in Elmira.

Grandson Barry Bouman recently returned from the World Scout Jamboree held near Calgary.

More than 23,000 scouts attended this event and had a wonderful time. Barry had many trophies and souvenirs to prove that the boys were kept busy for their 14 day stay in camp. They travelled by air and there were 23 boys and 4 leaders in their scout group from Elmira.

Between the Willows I remember when

By Don Byers
I remember when, if you needed only two screws for a repair job, you didn't have to buy a dozen, vacuum-packed, and then carefully put the other ten in a place where you'll never find them again. Oh yes.

I remember when a complete meal of fish and chips, wrapped in newspaper, cost 15 cents tops.

And I remember when there was a hamburger joint on just about every major street corner. . . serving burgers for a dime, with a texture and taste you cannot experience today.

Cigarettes were ten cents for a package of ten. (And, unfortunately, easily available to kids who should not have been buying them at all.)

I remember when policemen patrolled the streets on black bicycles, and when "cruisers" were Model A Fords.

And I remember the ice-man. When he delivered the 25-lb. block, we'd jump on the back of his wagon and grab cold chips to suck on. Oh yes.

I remember when all cars had runningboards and four-on-the-floor.

I remember when status was a three-wheeled bike. (I never attained it.) And two-wheeled scooters zapped along city sidewalks. (I did make that scene.)

I remember when Eatons and Simpsons deliverymen, and their horses were neighborhood celebrities, along with the breadman and milkman.

I remember when you could mail a letter for 4 cents, and feel secure it would reach its destination within a reasonable length of time.

I remember when mothers prayed throughout the searing, summer months that there would not be another outbreak of dreaded polio, for which there was no vaccine.

I remember, during the mid-Thirties, when for about five days in a row in July, the temperature exceeded 100 F. People slept on verandas, front lawns, back yards, parks and beaches.

And I remember when a woman could ruin her reputation if she were seen smoking a cigarette in public.

I remember when trains reigned supreme—huge, smoke-belching, steam-hissing monsters they were, with whistling whistles that stirred the imagination of just about every little boy. Well, at least this little boy.

I remember, long years before the boob-tube, when families entertained themselves. My mother and father, older brother and I, would often gather around the piano, in the tiny parlor, and make music together for hours. Not great music, mind you, but that really didn't seem to matter.

And I remember the five acres my Dad owned on Dixie Road, and the rows of potatoes, that, when hoeing and hilling, seemed to go on forever; meals from the wood-burning cook stove; tumbling out of bed at 4 a.m. to dust the plants while dew still sparkled on the leaves.

And I also remember selling six-quart baskets of the cucumbers we grew, door-to-door, for ten cents. Great cukes they were, too.

So much to remember. And, so long ago.

I hope, if you have stayed with me this far, I have kindled your fires of memory, too.

Perhaps more another time.

Club visits

On the weekend of July 16 to 18 eight members of the Halton 4-H Junior Dairy Calf Club had the super experience of travelling with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Nurse to Stormont County in Eastern Ontario which was celebrating 100 years of Holstein cattle in Canada.

Each member showed in both conformation and showmanship classes in the 4-H Show. Commemorative ribbons and a plaque were presented to each exhibitor.

The club also entered a float in the parade. All around, everyone had a great time. We all appreciated the help and supervision of Jeff and Kenda Nurse.

A century of Holsteins

Halton Junior Dairy 4-H Calf Club recently travelled to Newington in Stormont County, where a celebration was held for the 100th anniversary of Holstein cattle in Canada. Members Charles Bird, Frances Chisholm, Sandra Egger, Danny Hays, Leslie Hurren, Amanda and Andrew Kunica and Danny Wickson, accompanied by leader Jeff Nurse and his wife Kenda, entered this float in the parade. Members also showed calves in conformation and showmanship classes at the dairy show which followed the parade. Each exhibitor received a commemorative ribbon and plaque.

Reade still paid

Regional council unanimously passed a special motion to allow councillor Gordon Reade who is undergoing treatment for cancer to continue to hold his council seat.

"Basically the motion read that we were granting a leave of absence from the 12th of August for three months," explains councillor Terry Mannell who put the motion forward.

"The municipal act requires council to provide by special resolution for any councillor who misses three successive months without council's authorization. Regional clerk Garfield Brown was keeping an eye on it and informed me it was getting close to the limit."
