WAS IT A HARBINGER ?

A robin was heard singing lustily on Saturday last in Charlie Jones' garden during a snowfall. The very thought of spring gets the poets busy-it's a heard a song, so sweet and clear,

That filled my very heart with cheer, I clean forgot 'twas winter drear, A robin I heard singing. Snowflakes were falling from the sky. My heart heaved heavy with a sigh, The song I heard from the tree top high Was a melody of spring.

But lo. dear birdie, sweet and fan. Lov'd art thou by mortals everywhere ; January blasts still chill the air, False hopes you bring. We love your song, yet still we know You cannot live midst our ice and snow.

Cheer up! There is milder weather in the West.

And return again in spring.

To warmer climes we pray you'll go
