PAUL A. FISHER ADDRESSING IMPORTANT MEETINGS.

(Burlington Gazette) Paul A. Fisher, who has been appointed chairman of a committee by the Ontario minister of agriculture to investigate the proposal for a $1,000,000 wholesale fruit and vegetable market in Toronto, commenced the campaign during the past week by addressing fruit growers' meetings at Cobourg, Grimsby and St. Catharines where he presented his case and received splendid hearings. Plans to put a half-million dollars more income into the pockets of Niagara, Hamilton and Hamilton district fruit and vegetable growers through centralized and regulated wholesale market facilities at Toronto were revealed by Mr. Fisher in his various addresses. Toronto's sales of more than $100 million dollars of produce business each year, from one-third to a half is said to originate in the Hamilton-Niagara zone. Mr. Fisher said the campaign to secure a terminal wholesale market would be established. Mr. Fisher declared that the first job of all concerned is to gain co-operation and make the plan succeed in Toronto. After that, Hamilton would probably be selected as the next city for extending the marketing plan.

The city of Toronto and a designated distance beyond its municipal limit would be made an experimental area to work out, or the benefit of consumer as well as producer, a more efficient distribution system for Ontario grown fruits and vegetables. Mr. Fisher predicted if the plan succeeds in Ontario's largest city, similar zones would be created at Hamilton, London, Windsor, Kingston and Ottawa. In each of these a terminal wholesale warehouse would be established.

Mr. Fisher declared that the first job of all concerned is to gain co-operation and make the plan succeed in Toronto. After that, Hamilton would probably be selected as the next city for extending the marketing plan. The proposed development of central marketing facilities for fruit and vegetable growers, Mr. Fisher pointed out, is already closely allied with a plan to use newspaper and radio advertising more extensively. Under the proposed plan, it is hoped to considerably reduce commission charges for selling fruit and vegetables in the various markets.

Following Mr. Fisher's five weeks' tour, a conference will be held at Toronto late in February by the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario minister of agriculture, and W. B. Somers, marketing commissioner for the department. All interests are to be represented, and a decision made as to plans for the province's first terminal wholesale warehouse for fruit and vegetable growers.

J. N. Ogg Receives Letter From Governor Hoffman

(Burlington Gazette) Burlington's oldest male resident, J. N. Ogg, who will be 92 on August 17th, has received a personal letter from Governor H. Gerald Hoffman of New Jersey, suggesting that Nazi Germany is sheltering the "brains" behind the Lindbergh baby kidnapping and murder. "I make no apology for granting a reply to Bruno Richard Hauptmann," Governor Hoffman wrote to Mr. Ogg. "Colonel Lindbergh and many others have repeatedly expressed the opinion that the crime was perpetrated by more than one person. "I do not doubt that the crime could have been committed by any one man, and I am worried about the eagerness of some of our law enforcement agencies to bring about the death of this one man so that the books may be closed—an eagerness that is reflected in the order given to the banks to no longer bother about looking for the balance of the ransom money when approximately $30,000 was still in circulation. "I appreciate having your word of commendation and encouragement at this time. Regardless of the outcome, or of the consequences to myself, I know that I shall never regret having followed the dictates of my conscience and having responded to my own sense of duty."

VETERAN FARMER DEAD

Oakville, Jan. 30.—John Wesley Dowler, Postville, 76, died yesterday. Born near Milton, he farmed for 50 years near Boyle, Trafalgar townships, coming to Postville nine years ago. He was unmarried, and is survived by a sister, Mrs. Martha Askin, Richmond Va.

Ontario's population at the present time is over 2,000,000.

GEORGETOWN'S POST OFFICE FORMALLY OPENED SATURDAY

Georgetown's fine new $50,000 Federal Building was formally opened Saturday afternoon last. Dr. Robert King Anderson, former Conservative Federal member for Halton, officiated on behalf of the Postmaster-General and Federal Minister of Public Works. His being asked to perform the duty was in compliment to his many years' service at Ottawa, from which he retired prior to the October election.

The suggestion to forget politics in honoring a distinguished Halton citizen came, it was pointed out in addresses from Halton's Liberal members at Ottawa and Queen's Park, namely, Hughes Cleaver of Burlington and Thomas Blakelock of Oakville.

It was built almost entirely from Halton County materials and by Halton County workers. Its architect is John Elliot of the Milton firm of Elliot & Walker. Mayor Joseph Gibson presided, and associated with him in the civic achievement were ex-Mayors Levey Dale, K. C. and J. B. Mackenzie, whose son Samuel Mackenzie, was the chief contractor. His Worship lauded Postmaster-General McDevitt, and Everett Cole, Collector of Customs.

Brief addresses were given by Hughes Cleaver, M.P.; Thomas Blakelock, M.P.; L. E. Fleck, President of the Georgetown Conservative Association, and others. Mr. Cleaver praised Georgetown for the enterprise of its business people, which has kept it in an enviable place during the depression years. He emphasized a hope that returning better times would soon justify, through increased postal and excise business, the investment in Georgetown of Halton County's finest public building.

Hundred of citizens attended the ceremonies. Music was provided by the regimental band of the Lorne Rifles under Bandmaster A. H. Perrot.

VETERAN RECALLS MONARCH'S GIFT

The late King George V once gave W. J. Tracey of Streetsville, late driver of the Royal Field Artillery, a five shilling piece.

The gift was made at the old Bedford Hotel at Brighton, where their Majesties, as Duke and Duchess of York, had come to witness a tennis match. Tracey, then major in the front hall of the hotel, was given the duty of escorting the Royal couple through the hotel to the tennis court. The King handed him a five shilling piece as a tip, and Tracey treasured the coin for many years until he was forced to part with it in adversity in South Africa. Tracey's adversity did not stay in South Africa where he left. He suffered rough usage in the Great War, has suffered almost total loss of hearing, and early this winter his home was burnt. He is now in the front hall of the hotel, was given the duty of escorting the Royal couple through the hotel to the tennis court. GAUVILLE FIRE LOSSES HEAVIEST IN FOUR YEARS

The fire losses in Oakville during 1935 amounted to $7,000, the highest in four years, according to a report from C. Naylor, secretary of the Oakville Volunteer Fire Brigade. During the year a total of 22 calls were answered in the town, none of which were false alarms—Oakville record.

TAX COLLECTOR IS AGAIN A WOMAN

Precedent established in 1935 by appointment of a woman tax collector was followed at Thursday's meeting of the Burlington town council, by their appointment of Miss Frances Bamford, succeeding Miss Aina Wilson, who was promoted to the position of chief clerk of the Burlington Water Commission. Miss Wilson was acting town clerk and treasurer for the most of 1935.

GROOM CHANGES HIS MIND (Midland Free Press)

A mini-ritual friend of ours who marries people had a unique experience one day recently while conducting a wedding in his vestry. When he put the question to the prospective groom, "Will you have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he was startled to hear a loud "No!" Instead of the usual neck "I will." Repeating the question a second time, he got the answer in ringing tones: "No, I've changed my mind." And that was all there was to it. The ceremony stopped right there. The deflating groom made a hurried departure, his ears burning with a stinging rebuff from the minister. The young lady who had arranged the whole affair, covering her embarrassment as best she could, asked if he might bring her changeable lover back again if she could again get him in the mood, but was told she would have to go somewhere else.

The New York Sun claims to know a dentist who listed his office under "amusements." He did not say, however, whether the amusement is his patients' or his own.

In closing, I would just like to list a few advantages of having manual training in the curriculum.

- 1. It helps discipline.
- 2. It cultivates patience and concentration.
- 3. It teaches co-operation.
- 4. It provides an interest in school.
- 5. It leads the child on to new fields of construction work.
- 6. It leads the child to think out processes into their own relationship which manual training bears to his other school work.

Manual Training In Public Schools

The following article by Miss Edith Donkin, S.S. No. 15, Nelson, Halton county, appeared in the January issue of the Canadian School Journal:

"The old idea that education was entirely a matter of books has now almost disappeared. The memory system of the past is being supplanted by methods which directly appeal to the interests of the pupil and which use his own activity and observation in the training process. These methods have received recognition in kindergarten and kindergarten-primary, and if the work is useful there it can be of use through the whole school. Concrete material has had a real value in the training of the mental faculties. With it, the pupil's conception of design, form, space and proportion is broadened and made real.

"Manual training must not be thought of in terms of processes only, as it not only gives practice in doing, making and originating, but it is capable of being made to assist in the mental, manual and social development of the pupils.

"Too often parents and ratapayers judge manual training work in classes by the finished articles, made of wood. They seem to think the models are not enough to show for the expense. Few seem to realize that manual training does not necessarily mean woodwork or handicraft. This work is begun in the primary classes and carried on in advanced ways to fourth and fifth classes. No school subject can be an isolated one and many of them can be taught more effectively and in a more interesting way by the help of manual training.

"Making things, first from paper, cardboard, plasticine and finally of wood, cultivates patience, concentration and initiative. Aren't these desirable elements in the character of any girl or boy? "The main object of manual training is mental development, physical control and the art of making things. Give the child an interest in the latter, the correct methods and formation of good habits, and you need not worry about the amount of learning accomplished. The child will be interested enough to go on making things at home—things he really wants to make.

"The basis of many educational systems was presumably the idea that all children likely to attend the elementary school are born physically and mentally equal and capable, under similar treatment, of attaining the same degree of intellectual achievement. More or less arbitrary standards of expected progress were set up and both the bright and dull, the robust and the feeble were expected to reach them.

"This illusion is being dissipated and more and more does the worth-while teacher appreciate the physical, intellectual and emotional limitations and possibilities of the pupils under his or her care.

"We do not expect to standardize children, but rather aim at the development of every child following a realization of his possible attainments. School activities must be adapted to the known possibilities of the child and to the child adapted to the requirements of an inflexible programme.

"Today we have many children in our schools who cannot seem to fit in with the routine of school life. Rural schools and many town schools have no auxiliary classes but when handwork is taught in the school the teacher has a splendid opportunity to help these backward pupils. Boys, not able to work with abstract figures, learn arithmetic in a different way when able to work with a saw and plane, or better workers with wood than the boys who are higher in their academic subjects. In this way all the boys of the school are kept interested.

"The subject of manual training helps to bring about co-operation. Usually, there is not a great deal of equipment in a rural school, and if fifteen boys need to use ten cooking stoves, they will learn to work together on something that cannot be done in one's school.

"In closing, I would just like to list a few advantages of having manual training in the curriculum.

- 1. It helps discipline.
- 2. It cultivates patience and concentration.
- 3. It teaches co-operation.
- 4. It provides an interest in school.
- 5. It leads the child on to new fields of construction work.
- 6. It leads the child to think out processes into their own relationship which manual training bears to his other school work.

L.C.A. is Sustained in Peel Test Case

Brantford, Jan. 30.—Judge Trevor H. Groat yesterday dismissed the appeal of William Varley, member of the Toronto Moderation League, against conviction on charges of having liquor in his possession illegally and consuming.

By the dismissal, Judge Groat sustained the judgment last year of Magistrate L. J. C. Bull, who ruled that the Ontario Liquor Control Act is valid in Peel county and that the Canada Temperance Act in its present form is ultra vires.

Feb. 3, 1938 Accounts passed: For relief, $21,588; miscellaneous, $195.25. The auditors reported that they had checked all the receipts and expenditures of the treasurer's books, finding them correct, but had not completed their work in other respects and agreed they would be ready by the next meeting of council. Council authorized the agricultural representative to purchase a quantity of powder for warble fly treatment. Lengthy and interesting discussions took some time over the warble fly, but by and the big problem of keeping the township roads open for winter travel. Council adjourned to meet March 2nd at 1 o'clock. John Marshall, Clerk
