

Rifleman of the year

Princess Alexandra of Kent, as Colonel and Chief of her regiment, the Queen's Own Rifles, presented the Rifleman of the Year award to Gus Goutouski recently. He was recognized for his contributions as chairman of the D-Day plus 40 committee which arranged and promoted the attendance of more than 4,500 Canadian veterans at anniversary ceremonies in Normandy, France. Mr. B. Arron (centre), president of the Queen's Own Rifles Association and members of the regiment witnessed the presentation.

Michele Anderson, of Campbellville and Judith Kitching, of Moffat were given the Margaret S. McCready Scholarship during an awards ceremony at the University of Guelph in December.

The $2,000 scholarship, established by the Alma Mater Fund, is named in honour of the former Dean of Macdonald Institute.

In addition to this scholarship, 90 other students in the College of Family and Consumer Studies were honored, sharing in excess of $90,000 in fellowships and scholarships.

The Macdonald Institute Class of '88's Gerontology Graduate scholarship was given special mention. The $1,000 award is provided for one year of full-time post-graduate study or Brian Ambler complained that the frontage of his 95-acres in Moffat was improperly zoned. He said about half was zoned open-space conservation (hazard lands) while most of the rest was zoned both A2 (agriculture) and environmentally sensitive.

Open-space conservation land requires the approval of a conservation authority prior to building. Usually this is because the land is subject to some vagary of nature, such as flooding, from time to time.

Although Mr. Ambler didn't object strenuously to the OSC-zoned land, he said the label environmentally sensitive "effectively prevents me from building on my land".

Mr. Singer didn't agree with that assumption, although he said he had troubles accepting the label.

Town planner Bob Zsadanay said, after the meeting that the label is needed by Halton Region to conform with its official plan. He said that before Mr. Ambler could build on land deemed environmentally sensitive several studies, including a drainage analysis, would be needed.

Another complaint involved John Yaremko, who said wording in the bylaw allows building on lots which front only on maintained roads. His 50-acre parcel fronts on No. 3 Sideroad west of Guelph Line. At that point, the road is merely a dirt path and hasn't been maintained for at least 20 years.

However, Mr. Yaremko said he had no intention of building on those lots, the largest of which is a natural woodlot. He said he has applied to the Niagara Escarpment Commission to change the boundaries of the lots from north-south to east-west. He said he intends to donate the largest portion of the land, effectively the woodlot, to the Ontario Heritage Foundation. He would then take the lot which borders on Second Line and create five two-acre lots.

However, the plan requires NEC approval, which hasn't yet been received. It has been approved by the Town of Milton and Halton Region. Mr. Yaremko said he was objecting to the Town's bylaw because if his plan doesn't receive NEC approval, he would be prohibited from building on his parcel of land.

The NEC decision has been reached but it awaits approval from the provincial minister. That is expected soon.

Masked ball is arts council's pick me up

A masked ball is being offered as a cure for the February blahs by the Milton Arts Council.

The group's first fund raising event of the year will feature the music of a nine-piece orchestra, Rhythm and Reeds and a vocalist. The event will be held at Halton Hills Place on Saturday, Feb. 1 from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Council member Bill La Ferla said the group felt the masked ball would be "a nice pick me up" at this time of the year.

The council is in the process of establishing a calendar of events for the community to include activities of such organizations as the Milton Players and the Choristers. This project will increase awareness of local cultural events, a task which is one of the council's mandates. Sponsoring mini-concert series is another project being looked at for the new year.

A meeting in December attracted many new members, according to Mr. La Ferla, however the group is still looking to increase its numbers. The arts council is currently involved in a membership drive in an effort to raise funds. Money is required to cover legal fees necessary to incorporate the organization.

Directors and officers were elected at the recent meeting. Filling the positions are; Brian Lodge, president; Blanche Hinton, vice president; Bill La Ferla, vice president; Win Newell, treasurer; Penny Carlos, secretary; Anne Harrison and Carlo Tocalino, officers. Tickets for the masked ball are available at a cost of $25 per person which includes hors d'oeuvres and dinner and the entertainment. For information contact Anne Harrison at 878-0518.
