

So many different carpet types

The texture of that best suits your carpet determines its needs appearance and performance. Understanding texture will help you select the carpeting most carpet starts

There are three basic carpet textures: Loop pile is how most carpet starts out. Varying or cutting the loop creates different styles and patterns. Level loop pile carpet is made with tufted loops of the same height, left uncut. It has a tight, pebbly surface that can take hard wear (hiding footprints and furniture marks). Soil tends to stay on the surface, making it easy to clean. Multi-level loop pile carpet is constructed of different height loops, creating a sculptured or patterned surface. The design of the carpet hides dust and dirt better than a level loop texture, but it is not quite as Velvet or plush textures are a combination of cut-pile and loop-pile yarns. The shorter loops are left uncut, and the top level is sheared, creating a sculptured effect. Random shearing combines multi-level loop yarns, shearing off the tops of the highest loops.
