Neglect of duty charge heard

Halt Regional Police Sergeant Larry Pattinson appeared before a hearing officer Monday morning at the Burlington Police Station on a neglect of duty charge he received Feb. 17.

Sgt. Pattinson, 38, a patrol supervisor in Milton, was charged under the Police Act in connection with the time he spent at Gorrud Used Motors on Steeles Ave. in Milton on Jan. 7.

Appearing before hearing officer Superintendent Bernard Ward were prosecuting officer Inspector R. Dawson, investigating officer in the incident Det. Sgt. Keith Robertson, Sgt. Pattinson's superior officer, a communications officer, and Wilf Maskell manager of Gorrud Motors.

Sgt. Pattinson did not testify Friday May 6 is the date set for adjudication on the matter.

Two weeks ago Sgt. Pattinson, who had been on a temporary leave of absence for stress after the charge and has since returned to the force, has been transferred to the Georgetown station.

Police would not comment on whether the transfer was a form of reprimand.

Sgt. Dave Pruitt, of the force's community relations bureau, says Sgt. Pattinson's charge is considered a minor offence and could result in the officer receiving a warning, or the loss of five days off or three days pay.
