

Whitlock, Redshaw win

Manitoba last summer. Ontario beat Alberta for the title.

She also plays in the Golden Horseshoe League on the Oakville team. She has been playing soccer for nine years and recently was named rookie of the year at Queen's University in Kingston where she is a first-year biology major.

Sandra Stephanson won her award for excellence in rowing but could not be reached for comment.

"Ontario is gaining a strong reputation for athletic excellence on the national and international fields of competition," said Ontario Minister of Tourism and Recreation Hugh P. O'Neil.

"This could not have been done without the dedication, drive and achievement of these athletes. We are proud to offer back to them this small part of the recognition they have gained for us."

More than 1,000 1987 Athlete Achievement Awards will be given to individual and team athletes from the Central Ontario region. Awardees include sprinter Ben Johnson of Scarborough, the world's fastest man.

Presentation of athletic achievement awards and other sports awards to volunteers and corporate sponsors will take place April 15 at the 21st annual Sports Awards Banquet, to be held at the Sheraton Centre in Toronto.

The banquet and presentations are being put on by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation.

Milton's Ed Whitlock, winner of an international cross-country race, want to find more time to run.

Cathy Redshaw, rookie of year winner at Queen's, is again playing soccer for Oakville.

King, Sipkes OFSAA bound

She said poor tumbling kept her from a possible gold Friday. She has set modest goals for OFSAA.

"I just want to place other than last," said King.

Campbell thinks both gymnasts will do well at OFSAA.

She said this could be the year Sipkes places in the medals after coming fourth two years in a row. King is an "underdog" for a medal, but could win one in floor because of her strong dancing routine.

The high school has had an off and on program when it comes to gymnastics, but interest has been strong enough in the last three years to form a team and compete at GHAC.

The club is made up of first-year athletes along with those from the Milton Springers gymnastics club. King and Sipkes are Springers.

Angela Barrow came fifth overall in intermediate vault and just missed going to the provincials.

Competitors had to place in the top four for a trip to Chatham.

Marni Bissonnette, Pauline Campbell, Angela Andrews and Nicola Cason rounded out the team.

They are beginning gymnasts and earned respect from Campbell and McPherson for their gutsy performances.

"All did extremely well for their first time in competitions," said McPherson.

The high school team trained at the Milton Springers' headquarters in the mornings before school started. Morning practices were about two times a week.

McPherson appreciated use of Springer equipment and Campbell's help. Both coaches will be in Chatham.

McPherson, a former physical education teacher and now principal, explained his coaching skills are rusty and gave Campbell much of the credit for the Milton's strong showing Friday.
