Excuuuse mee!

Toronto Blue Jay catcher Ernie Whitt goes into second base hard in an attempt to break up this fourth inning double play hit into by Toronto DH Rance Mulliniks. Making the successful turn was Milwaukee's second baseman, Jim Gantner. The Blue Jays went on to win 4-2, to record their first ever win at the SkyDome. A 14-bus load contingent from Sam Sherratt School witnessed the game.

As alluded to last week, the bad news for Realtor fans was the arm injury to all-star pivot Kevin Prendergast. But to dispel rumours that 'The Pretz' has left the MFFL to become Petr Klima's personal chauffeur, Prendergast did play as a receiver and managed to haul in a second-quarter Jimmy Simpson pass. That complimented a late six-point reception by defensive stalwart Bruce Herbert. Simpson was good on both conversions.

But the big news is the Bruce Hood squad. They're playing consistent football, under the guidance of QB Rob Scott. Scott, besides running the season record to three wins and two losses and a share of second place, found time to throw four touchdowns, two to his big centre Ian Sargeant and singles to Rich Olexa and Dominic Lepre.

Irwin Trunk had a perfect (and rare for the MFFL) four-for-four night in the points-after department. On the defensive side of things, the Travellers were able to get interceptions out of Hector Campbell and Larry Barringer, who's back from his self-imposed exile now that I'm firmly in place to do this year's articles (and his old job).

On a final note, Re/Max defender, Ken Corder, obviously buoyed by his newest family addition, Bradley Alexander, kept his interception streak alive with a fourth-quarter pickoff of a Scott offering. P.S. Congrats to Ken and Donna.

THE PERFECT PRESENT

A PERSON-ETTE™ is the most personal of art forms. The artist uses a person's proudest possession, his or her name. Second to their name, outside interests play an important part in a person's life. A PERSON-ETTE™ incorporates both of these into a unique one-of-a-kind creation. PERSON-ETTES™ are copyrighted and cannot be mass produced.

We provide many gift opportunities, such as a birth, wedding, anniversary, graduation, vacation, hobby or athletic activity. Give that special someone the perfect gift, give them an original PERSON-ETTE™.
