

Logo debate ends with selection of former second choice

Fellow Ward 3 councillor Bruce Attenborough slammed Bill Johnson at municipal council Monday night for calling his fellow elected officials "lily-livered."

Mr. Attenborough criticized councillor Johnson when the now controversial subject of a new logo for Milton came up one last time. Eventually, in a 6-5 recorded vote, what had originally been the second choice became Milton's new design, and the original front runner was discarded.

The town's new logo features a stylized 'M' representing the Niagara Escarpment backed by a depiction of a sun/moon. The previous favorite had been a brickwork arch symbolizing the renovated town hall atop the word 'Milton'.

In a letter to The Champion last week Mr. Johnson accused councillors of being "lily-livered" when a motion he proposed to take Champion news editor Rob Kelly to the Ontario Press Council was not seconded. Mr. Johnson alleged that Mr. Kelly had inaccurately reported on the logo affair, as well as other matters.

The public exchange in The Champion which followed included a report on Mr. Johnson's criticisms followed by an editorial written by Mr. Kelly criticising Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson replied with a letter, which Mr. Kelly subsequently attacked in an opinion column.

"I take exception to being called lily-livered because I made a decision that I think called for common sense," Mr. Attenborough said. In reference to Mr. Johnson's behaviour, he added, "if you continue spitting into the fan you're going to find yourself ducking."

In reply, Mr. Johnson said he had no regrets about using the term. "I mean every word of it."

Mr. Attenborough raised his hand to reply, but Mayor Gord Krantz cautioned that "one of the things I don't want to get into is a debate" between the two councillors. Mr. Attenborough put his hand down for a few seconds and said, "forget it," but then shook his head and raised his arm again.

He stood and said he had "great difficulty" with being called "lily-livered" and then dismissed other arguments put forward by councillor Johnson as "political drivel."

Voting in favor of the new design were Councillors Mary Long, Brian Penman, Attenborough, Les Laughren, Brad Clements and Rick Day.

Voting in favor of what was generally perceived on council as the more traditional design were Mayor Krantz, Mr. Johnson, Colin Best, Barry Lee and Art Melanson.
