PRO DRIVING TIPS

NUMBER 12 BRAKING

When I'm carrying a load I have to be extra careful about anticipating stops and braking early. The same applies to a car driver who wants to come to a stop smoothly and safely.

Have periodic brake checks, especially when road conditions are bad or when you have been driving through water. Water on the brake drums can seriously impair braking efficiency.

In bad weather brake gradually to avoid locking the wheels on wet, icy or snow-covered roads. If the wheels lock, ease up on the brakes until they unlock, then reapply pressure.

Stopping on slippery roads is more difficult than under normal conditions, so give yourself extra time and keep your distance.

Heavy load requires careful braking

Brake gradually on slippery roads

If you are braking on a slippery road and want to turn, take your foot off the brake pedal. It's almost impossible to brake and turn at the same time.

Brake before the turn
