

Museum's 'friends' honoured

Four history buffs, including three from Milton, were honoured by Halton Region Council for five years of volunteer service to the Halton Region Museum.

Jean Butts has worked on the registration of the Museum's artifact collection — a task that involves researching and documenting a large number and variety of objects.

Alex Cooke specializes in genealogical research and answers the many queries about family histories the museum receives.

Jessie Hamilton has made curtains for the buildings, table cloths and costumes for programming.

Also honoured was Kay Sekine of Oakville who has worked on the museum's Zimmerman and Proudfoot Hollow Archaeological projects.
