

Good etiquette makes skiing safe

Like any other shared activity there is an accepted code of conduct for skiers. This skiing etiquette ensures a smooth operation of the slopes and an enjoyable time for all participants.

How many times have you been moving along in the lift line and the people behind you are all over your ski equipment? There is no reason to be this close and it is dangerous.

If you are skiing by yourself try to double with someone when using a t-bar or chairlift. The lift line will move more quickly and you might just meet a new friend as a result.

Top of the Slope

with DAVE BEYNON

When riding a chair don't try to bang the snow off your skis as you are going up. This can result in a ski falling among skiers below the lift.

If you see a skier on the hill who has fallen, ski to them to see if they need help. Stop and pick up their skis or poles that might be uphill from them. The assistance will be appreciated and possibly reciprocated.

If you stop and talk to people on the hill please make sure that you go over to the side of the hill. There is nothing more annoying than people standing in the middle of a run just talking or resting. Please make sure that skiers at the top of the hill can see you. Never, never stop anywhere where you can't be seen.

Just remember to use common sense and courtesy when you are skiing and everyone will have an enjoyable time. See you on the slopes!

Shauna Turner gets first Springer gold

Despite all the positives of this season for the Milton Springers Gymnastic Club: new facilities, club leotards, record registration and good competitive performances; a gold medal still eluded them until now.

Shauna Turner, the youngest competitor on the Springers' team, captured the gold medal for vault at the second qualifying meet in Hamilton. Along with the gold was a fourth place finish on the floor exercise which gave Turner a fourth overall.

The rest of the squad also had a successful weekend. With Turner in the Pre-Argo category were Lori Cyr and Stephanie Scarpino. Cyr performed the best bar routine of her life to score a team high 9.25 points good enough for a bronze. Scarpino, suffering from a sore knee, could only compete on bar and beam. She stuck the beam for an 8.7 score and hit on a 9.05 mark on bars which gave her seventh place, just out of the ribbons.

Veteran competitor Vicki Chlisczyk turned in a good all-around performance to win third place overall. She claimed a silver medal on vault as well as bronze medals on bars and floor. Megan Anderson in the Argo Division cornered the market on fifth place finishes placing fifth of 26 competitors on vault, beam and floor exercise.

Coach Janet Campbell was pleased with the girls' performances and looks forward to some time off to work on new skills for the third qualifying meet in April.
