

Rays of Hope Auction on Sunday will support women's shelter

Organizers of Halton Women Place's first annual Rays of Hope Auction are hoping for a big turn out Sunday, May 3.

The event in support of the Milton shelter for battered women and their children will take place at the Burlington Auction Gallery, 481 John St., from 1 to 5 p.m.

Blair Lancaster-Kemp, a prominent area business woman renown for bettering women through esthetics and modelling opportunities, is the auction's special guest hostess. Female members of families firmly entrenched in development in Burlington will also be on hand — in relation to the idea that Halton Women's Place helps women build themselves a better future.

The auction is the largest fundraising event ever undertaken by the shelter, said Linda Gray of Halton Women's Place.

"The support received from merchants throughout the region has been tremendous and is certain to hold something for every age in every price range," she said.

Halton Women's Place is the only shelter for abused women and their children in the region. It has been operating near capacity for months, said Ms Gray.

Admission to the auction is free, and refreshments will be available. Door prizes will be drawn frequently. A preview of items will take place at 11 a.m. the day of the auction.
