

Suspense surrounds new production of Milton Players

Cast of seasoned actors in six-night run of mystery

The Milton Players Theatre Group's first production of the season, The Mark of Cain, takes the stage Thursday, Nov. 12 at the St. Clair Masonic Hall.

Lynette Austin

themselves, "what really happened?"

Patrick McManus and Lynette Austin, who are not new to the Players, play the leads in the production.

Patrick McManus

where he has had principal roles in Guys and Dolls and South Pacific.

The seasoned actor recently performed in the Playhouse '82 production of Man of La Mancha. Mr. McManus plays Sean in the Players' latest presentation.

This is Ms Austin's third appearance with the Milton Players. She was seen in last season's productions of Children and Design for Murder. She has also been involved backstage in several past performances. In The Mark of Cain, she plays Dale.

Directing the play is veteran Penelope Carlos. She was one of the founding members of the theatre group 11 years ago. Ms Carlos received her theatre training in London, England where she graduated from the Guildhall School of Music and Drama. She has worked in all capacities with the Players.

Murray Lowry, who plays Otto in the Players' latest production, has performed in more than 50 stage productions in Vancouver, Montreal, Munich, and Toronto. He has also appeared in several feature films and on television. The Mark of Cain is his first appearance with the Players.

Also appearing for the first time on stage with the local theatre group is Andrea Mastro, who plays

Penny Carlos
