

PRO DRIVING TIPS

23 GETTING UNSTUCK

If you get stuck in the snow and you are in a fairly safe area, dig the snow away from all wheels. Work slowly and don't over exert yourself.

Terry Graham, Peterborough, of Colheart Transporte Limited, has driven 2.5 million km and has 21 years of accident-free driving.

Remove snow from around wheels

Put traction pads or pieces of carpeting, or scraps of cardboard under the drive wheels.

Old carpeting gives traction

Spread sand, rocksalt, ashes or kitty litter under the tires. Then gently rock the car back and forth by changing from forward to reverse, increasing the distance travelled with each rock. Use gentle accelerator pressure. If your car is automatic, brake when shifting from drive to reverse or vice versa, to avoid damaging the transmission.

If you are stranded try to make the vehicle as visible as possible, using flares, emergency flashers or even a scarf or piece of cloth tied to the aerial.

Make car visible if you're stranded

Park safely out of the way of traffic. It's the safest and warmest place. Run the engine for 10 minutes every hour but keep a window partially open for ventilation. Check to make sure the exhaust pipe is not blocked with snow. Deadly carbon monoxide from the exhaust is odourless.
