For the best comfort and the economy of natural gas, we recommend an Ultimate III Natural Gas High-Efficiency furnace by Heil.

by Liz Campbell

"We don't undercut prices because you cut quality when you do that," says Bruce Bell. "We charge a fair price and we do the job properly. That way, our customers come back."

They've been coming back to Bailey's Fuels since Bruce first joined the firm in 1956. In 1969, he bought the company from Jim Bailey, but the name remained essentially the same, Bailey's Heating and Cooling. And so did the service.

"It's probably the one thing all our customers would agree on," smiles

Bell. "We offer good service. We always call back quickly."

Bailey's is an accredited Union Gas dealer providing everything for home comfort needs from furnace and air conditioning to gas fireplaces. Most of Bailey's factory-trained staff have been with the company for many years. The company can supply, install and repair heating and cooling equipment using natural gas, oil and electric fuels. And they serve both commercial and residential customers. Being dealers for Union Gas, they can frequently offer special savings packages such as a free shower head with a new water heater or deferred payment on an air conditioner or fireplace. And their new showroom at 103 Steeles is a good place to actually examine a variety of working gas fireplace models before choosing the one you like best. Ask Bruce Bell for advice as to which model would best suit your family's needs.

Little extras like stocking essential parts and a range of widths of black pipe for gas lines, quick response to a phone call for assistance and even free advice when looking for the right water heater or fireplace for your home are what make Bailey's service special.

As they come up to their 40th anniversary in Milton, Bailey's Heating and Cooling is still doing what they have always done, providing the community with reliable home comfort service.
