

Ability Tree grows money for March of Dimes

The Ontario March of Dimes launched a fundraising effort at Halton Region headquarters in Oakville last week.

Regional Chairman Peter Pomeroy was on hand to launch the Ability Tree program. Hopes are to raise $7,500 over the next few weeks. Joining Mr. Pomeroy were Jean and Mike Caine, owners of Oakville radio station CHWO and longtime supporters of the March of Dimes.

A central pole with tree-like limbs, similar to the March of Dimes symbol, will hold cards from those donating $50.

Mr. Pomeroy said the tree would stand in the lobby of the regional building to recognize those who contributed, and to be a visual reminder to people of all groups who require society's support.

The March of Dimes helps adults with physical disabilities live an independent life by providing devices such as wheelchairs and communications aids, as well as employment services.

The Ontario March of Dimes recently kicked off its fundraising Ability Tree Program at the Region of Halton. The organization hopes to raise $7,500. With regional chairman Peter Pomeroy (left) are Lea McMoran, Pamela Caine, Jean Caine and Michael Caine, all of the organization.
