

Honest citizen turns in laptop computer

Police are looking for the owner of a laptop computer that was found in the parking lot of McDonald's Restaurant on Martin Street.

Police Blotter

The attack occurred after the 36-year-old victim and her husband got into an argument at their home Saturday at 10:40 p.m.

A citizen turned the expensive piece of equipment in to Halton Regional Police after discovering it Friday, shortly before 6 p.m.

Charged with assault is the woman's 57-year-old husband.

The owner can get it back by correctly identifying it, police said. Call 878-5511, ext. 2109.

Two break-ins New Year's Eve

It wasn't a happy new year for two local businesses that were targets of thieves on New Year's Eve.

Man charged with impaired
What originally appeared to be a speeding violation turned out to involve a much more serious offence Sunday.

Someone smashed open the front door of Beckers at Woodward Avenue and Wilson Drive at 3:45 a.m. and made off with $300 worth of goods.

A 49-year-old man faces charges of impaired driving and driving with over the legal limit of alcohol in his blood after police spotted a car travelling at a high rate of speed on Steeles Ave.

The thief took lottery tickets, cigarettes and an undisclosed amount of cash before leaving the same way he came in.

The car was stopped at 1:20 a.m. after it left a Steeles Avenue night club, police said.

Meanwhile, sometime overnight, a thug kicked in the basement window of the Steven Keir Law Office on Martin Street, but left empty-handed.

Woman assaulted

A Campbellville-area woman suffered minor scrapes to her legs in a domestic dispute, police said.

Police said something must have scared the thief off. However, he didn't leave before causing $100 damage to the window.

Let it snow

You can't stop winter, so why not just enjoy it. That's exactly what six-year-old Laura Prusha and her mom Donna did at Holy Rosary School over the weekend.
