History buffs honoured

It was, as usual, a historic afternoon, Milton honoured its Heritage Award winners recently at a ceremony in Hugh Foster Hall.

Awards were presented for excellence in the fields of education, writing, visual arts and architectural restoration. Winners told their stories through speeches and table top displays.

The educational awards went to Robert Baldwin Elementary School for their project on Niagara Escarpment Pioneers and to Martin Street School for their 75th anniversary celebration.

The writing awards went to Ken Lamb for his book "Milton Remembers World War II" and to Alex Cooke for "Milton Area Biographies".

The visual award went to the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 136 to recognize completion of Remembrance Hall.

Architectural award winners include James and Patricia Douglas in the category of restoration of a designated property. Don and Ann Corker received an award for conservation of a non-designated property and Paul and Judy Boivin were recognized for infill construction in a heritage neighbourhood.

The Milton Jaycees

Why JAYCEES??
Have You ever thought what the future will be for your family, the Community and the nation if conditions relating to crime, pollution, health, safety and many more remain? We need leaders, and the Jaycees can help provide them. The responsibility and challenge is yours "to lead, or to follow". Will you remain part of the problem, or will you contribute to the solution?

What do Jaycees offer?
First, ask yourself what you want from life. Do you want to seek success? Do you want an active role in the civic life of your community, to meet and work with new acquaintances, interesting people and to enlarge your social contact with others with similar interests?
If so, time spent in Jaycees could be a wise investment.
