Top Notch earns medal

Top Notch was also honoured recently by the Halton Regional Safety Council as well as Ralston Purina, which inducted the dog into the Animal Hall of Fame.

Also receiving civilian awards from police were Milton's Garry Ellwood, Nicole Plant and Brian Muir.

The screams of a 13-year-old boy alerted Mr. Ellwood, of Ridge Drive, that something was wrong. A group of six young boys were walking along the banks of the Sixteen Mile Creek in March last year when one of the youths slipped and fell into the rapidly moving, frigid water.

Mr. Ellwood, who happened to be in his backyard, immediately sprang into action when he heard the commotion.

As the boy was being dragged down the creek, the man grabbed a rope, climbed the fence surrounding the swollen creek and pulled the boy to safety.

"Garry's quick-thinking and action averted a certain tragedy," said Halton police Chief Peter Campbell.

Eleven-year-old Nicole was honoured after calling 9-1-1 to help her father, who was having a seizure.

Mr. Plant was trampled by a bull in November and suffered a serious concussion. The following morning, he had a seizure at home. The frightened little girl's mother blacked out during the ordeal, but Nicole remained calm and called 9-1-1.

Mr. Plant was transported to hospital and was diagnosed with a blood clot and fluid on the brain.

"Thanks to the heroics of his daughter," Chief Campbell said, "he was able to get the medical attention he needed, just in time."

Mr. Muir and friend Ian Duffield located a two-year-old boy wandering on Bronte Street at 11 p.m. February 12, 1995.

The youngster, who had wandered off from this aunt, was wearing only pyjamas and a pair of boots in minus 14 degrees Celsius weather.

"They took the boy into their care and contacted police," the chief said. "This child was returned home safely thanks to the quick-thinking of these two men."

"It is apparent that if these two men had not taken the time to get involved, the results could have been tragic."

An off-duty RCMP officer was credited for helping Halton police officers at the scene of a brawl in downtown Milton October 29 last year.

Police were called at 1 a.m. to respond to a large group of people fighting in a parking lot. The group was unruly and the police presence was ignored, Chief Campbell said.

Early in the disturbance, RCMP Sgt. Terry Hislop approached the only officer thus far on the scene and offered to help.

"Sgt. Hislop put himself at risk during this street brawl and acted in a competent and professional manner," the chief said.

Watch your pet in warm weather

In a program sponsored in part by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, May is being recognized as Rabies Awareness Month.

With many pets venturing outdoors in the warm weather, it becomes easy for them to come in contact with rabid animals. The problem becomes even worse when an infected pet brings rabies home to its owner. Experts say that the best protection is for people to vaccinate their pets and keep them indoors.
